A Rather Lively Sabbath in Washington Vesterday

AMONG THE DIFFERENT DELEGATIONS

Trying to Get the Republican Na tional Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO AND MINNEAPOLIS

Seem to Be Ahead of the Other Cities. Blaine Away Ahead of Harrison as the Preference for Nomination, WASHINGTON, November 22 .- [Special.]-The fight for the location of the republican national convention has been fast and furious has been figuratively broken into fragments.

The bar of the Arlington hotel, where the headquarters of the committee are located, has been running at full blast, and the patronage has been most liberal. The happiest people in Washington have been the judges and colonels and majors. They have enjoyed the treat immensely. They have drunk the best quality of liquor and smoked the finest brands of cigars at the expense of the com-peting cities with the mental adjuration that the fight might continue forever, amen! But it will end tomorrow.

Minneapolis or Cincinnati.

Where the convention will go no one can tell until the committee acts, but tonight it looks like either Minneapolis or Cincinnati. A fight between the west and the east, with the possibility that if it does swing east a deal may be consummated which will land it in New York. Detroit and Pittsburg have thrown up the sponge. Omaha has agreed to to quit after a few complimentary ballots and go to Minneapolis, and San Francisco has practically agreed to do the same thing. The San Francisco boom suffered a bad cod The San Francisco boom suffered a bad col-lapse in the wee small hours of the morning when the California champagne lost its charm. Today the Pacific coast enthushiasm seemed o have subsided in a large degree. Beating bass drums becomes tiresome after awhile, both for those who are doing the pounding and for the listeners. Besides, Mike DeYoung, who is engineering the San Francisco boom, bid above what the other cities considered the limit and they all turned on him. In addition to free rides for the delegates and free everything else under the sun, he offered the committee $40,000, enough to meet the commit-tee's present indebtedness and leave a snug littles um in the treasury. When the representatives of the other cities heard of it, there was a howl from Cincinnati, New York and Detroit.

The Minneapolis fellows, however, began to go down in their pockets, declaring that they were after the convention, and proposed to "stay in" to the end. One of them said that they "would see California's ante and go them a few better." It looked for a time as if the convention was to be auctioned off. Some of the Cincinnati delegation tried to raise the necessary money to stay in the pot, in the belief that unless they did so they might as well pack their grips and go home.

At this critical juncture, when a scandal wa imminent, New York made a stiff kick against the turn the fight had taken. Some of her representatives went to Chairman Clarkson and wanted to know if the convention was to he knocked down to the highest hidder. A hasty meeting of the executive committee was called, at which it was decided to hush up the talk of before by refusing to allow any city to pay the commistee's debts.

This put the rival cities back on a level again, and the scramble went on. The delegates from the west are hanging together. convention must go west of the Mississippi and a combination with that end in view has been all but consummated several times today. An effort will be made to pass a preliminary resolution tomorrow to send the convention west of the Mississippi, and it is claimed that it will get twenty-eight votes, twenty from be-yond the river and eight scattered through New England and the south. A majority is

San Francisco Has a Chance. San Francisco Has a Chance.

If this resolution passes there will probably be a concentration on Minneapolis, although there is a possible show for San Francisco. Cincinnati is playing a walting game. Situated betwixt and between the Cincinnati folks believe that after a number of ballots the votes will begin to flock to the Queen City and that she will capture the convention Everybody, however, is keeping a sharp look-out on General Clarkson. He is the bellis a general suspicion that he will march off to New York and carry a majority of the committee with him. It has been decided that the committee will meet at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and that an hour will be given to each city, the time to be divided as her representatives may determine.

They All Prefer Blaine.

A remarkable feature of the talk among the republican leaders at the Arlington from every state in the union is the almost universal preference for Blaine or some other man as against Harrison for the nomination. About the only republicans who are displaying any Harrison enthusiasm are the office-holders, and most of them look as if their heads had been held under the pump. Quite a number of Blaine's ardent supporters have taken the opportunity to call upon the secretary, but to none of them has he hinted that he did not intend to become a candidate. On the contrary, he has listened with the deepest interest to the re-ports that have been brought to him from the various sections of the country. More than this, he has made inquiries as to the feeling which is said to be so intense for him in the west. It is very certain that Mr. Blaine's callers, from the statements which they made after leaving him, do not regard him as off the presidential track.

It is this fact which has developed the sentiment for Blaine, which is now so outspoken among the various delegations and committee-men as to be a matter of general comment.

All arrangements for the meeting of the national republican committee at the Arlington hotel tomorrow are about completed. A large banquet in the new addition to the hotel has been prepared for the use of the commit-tee. The large room to the right of the hall will be used as a consultation room for the committee. The committee will be called to order at 11 o'clock by Acting Chairman Clarkson, after which the organization will be perfected. Some time will be consumed in this work.

national committee from Connecticut, said tonight that after the organization of the com-mittee the next business in order would be action upon the resignation of Chairman Quay and the choice of some one to succeed him.

Next will follow the approval of the act of the the committee, and the appointment Barbou, of New York, in his stead.

Barbou, of New York, in his stead.

The transaction of the business above referred to, including the organization of the committee, will probably consume about two hours. The committee will then hear arguments from delegations from the various cities who desire to secure the national republican convention of 1892.

Mr. Fessenden said that the time to be allowed each delegation had not yet been determined upon, but it would probably be the same as that allowed four years ago, namely, one hour.

Will Probably Take Two Days.

After the delegations have all been hear the committee will proceed to ballot, and balloting will continue until a city has been selected. After a selection has been made the committee will fix the time for holding the convention. The committee will then consider the form of the call for the convention.

All other business of a routine character, such as the reports of subcommittees, etc., will then receive the attention of the committee.

Mr. Fessenden said he thought the committee would be in session two days.

the World's Fair Directory. Onicago, November 22.—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad is the prime mover in the sc to secure an entrance at the south end of Jack ning south from the vnion, Van Buren street and Polk street stations as well as those from the Illinois Central station. Under the terms of arrangement, fifteen great railroads will have direct entrance to the world's fair grounds, including the Illinois Central, Michgrounds, including the Hinnois Central, Mich-igan Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Big Four, Chicago and Grand Trunk, Wabash, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Chicago and Erie, Lake Shore, Pittaburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago, Pan Handle, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Chicago and Alton and Rock Is-land. The exposition management, will as land. The exposition management will as sume all obligations for a lease of the grounds over which the tracks pass. Negotiations for such right of way have been carried on by James Walsh, who is the real state agent of the Baltimore and Ohio, and at the same time the Baltimore and Ohio, and at the same time a representative of the world's fair directory. The right of way will furnish room for four tracks. It will begin in the intersection of the Baltimore and Ohio and Seventy-fifth street, running north to the southern boundary of Jackson park and entering the grounds about thre hundred and fifty feet west of Stony Island avenue. Here terminal facilities will be afforded by the exposition management for the loading and unloading of passenger trains. The conditions under which the right of way has been obtained are that all the tracks shall be removed by August 1, 1894.

STONED AFTER DEATH.

The Bodies of Two Dead Generals Dragged Through the Streets of Valparaiso.

"The bodies of the two dead generals were allowed to lie uncared for where they fell for nearly a week. Finally, after the revelry in Valparaiso had partially subsided, the bodies of the two dead generals were picked up, placed on a rude four-wheeled carryall, and dragged through the streets of Valparaiso, being spit upon and stoned by the infuriated mob. It was a terrible sight to see two bodies stiff in death, the arm of one of them stretched out almost upright, being treated in such a hideonsly uncivilized manner."

Another officer, in speaking of the attack on Vina Del Mar by the congressionalist forces, stated that the torpedo gunboat Admirante Lynch was lying close in by Valparaiso, directly ahead of the San Francisco. The Lynch steamed ahead as close to the contending forces as possible, and opened fire on the congressionalists with her Hotchkiss rapidifring machine guns. She had not been firing very long when she lowered her flag to half mast, and steamed in a circle around the San Francisco and the Baltimore back to her original anchorage. We afterward learned that the Hotchkiss gun had exploided, killing a lieutenant and severely wounding half a dozen other men. That was the reason she retired from the fight.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD.

SEARCHING FOR THE DEAD.

Resouers at Work at the Scene of the Accident in Brooklyn.

New York, November 22.-All last night 100 men labored at the scene of the disaster at Ridgewood, Brooklyn, searching for the bodies of the four laborers who were caught in a cave-in of sand and the bursting of a main of the Long Island Water Supply Company that occurred yesterday afternoon. At 7 o'clock this morning they were relieved by a gang of 200 others. At twenty minutes of 3 o'clok the first body was recovered. It was found some twenty-five feet below the surface, standing in an upright position, both hands firmly grasp-ing a shovel. It was identified as Paulo Gun-ing a shovel. It was identified as Paulo Gundino, an Italian, living at 56 Canton street.

No attempt was made during the day to find the bodies of the other three men, Hugh Murphy, Joseph Cosine and Phillip Salson, who were caught between the timber and pilling that held up the sides of the excavation for the timber and pilling that held up the sides of the excavation for the new iron main that was being laid. Every effort was made to find the top of the brick conduit, to learn, if possible, if it was intact or had been broken. When its condition has been established the question of whether Brooklyn is to have a water famine or not will be known.

SYMPATHY FOR THE MINERS

In Their Fight Against Convict Labor in

Nashville, Tenn., November 22.-[Special.] The Central Labor Union, composed of dele gates from every branch of organized labor, met today for the purpose of naming delegates to attend the meeting of miners at Newcomb to consider the troubles growing out of the competition with convict labor in East Tennessee. Three delegates were selected and the following resolutions adopted:

Resolved, by the Central Labor Union of Nashville, That we heartily sympathize with the miners in their present labor troubles and with all others who come in competition with convict labor, and will use all of our influence to secure an abrogation or modification of the lease system at the next meeting of the state legislature.
Resolved, That while we sympathize with the miners of East Tennessee, and will do all in our power to assist them when in trouble, we feel that no permanent good can result in lawlessness or in defiance of the law, either to the miners or to organized labor, but will naturally result in a loss of respect and sympathy for our cause. Therefore, we believe that the best interests of all is to demand that a conservative course be pursued, and all interested agree to abide by the law as it exists, until we can secure legislative action.

Washington, November 22.—Secretary Foster is today confined to his bed by an attack of grip resulting directly from a bad cold which he contracted while in New York. Dr. Cecil, his attendant physician, says the attack is also attributable in part to the need of rest from a long continued mental strain, but there is no reason to doubt that the secretary will soon be restored to his usual health.

THEY ARE ORDERLY,

And Will Make No Attempt to Release the Convicts.

ALABAMA'S GOVERNOR INTERVIEWED

In Regard to a Recent and Start ling Rumor

THAT THE MINERS WOULD FOLLOW

The Example of the Tennessee Men, an the Convicts Therein.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., November 22.—[Special.]—Your correspondent interviewed Governor Jones, and asked about the sensational reports sent out from Chattanooga that miner from Tennessee have been in consultation with the miners around Birmingham with a view to releasing the convicts in Alabama, and that the excitement growing out of the present agitation in Jefferson county would probably lead to trouble and attempts to turn the convicts loose before the present political campaign was over.

The governor replied that he had seen some newspaperjextracts to that effect, but that there was not the slightest foundation for them. He was sorry such reports had been set afloat They discouraged investment, destroyed confidence and created a feeling of uneasines which was damaging to every interest. " He said further:

No Danger of an Outbreak,

"I know something about the miners aron Birmingham. I have recently addressed large audiences composed almost entirely of them and talked with hundreds of them. As a rule they are a fine body of men and of more than the average intelligence. They read a great deal, and think for themselves This is generally true of the mineral regions This is generally true of the mineral regions of Alabama. They are fully posted as to the difficulties in the way of any sudden change in the convict system. What they want is that the next legislature shall make a new systems and preparations for a change. They know the legislature is the only power to accomplish that, and so far from there being danger of their making attempts to liberate the convicts, the reverse is true. Last winter over five thousand of them were on a strike, and agitators were among them advocating violence. At my request a committee cating violence. At my request a committee of the strikers visited me to confer about the situation. They realized most fully that violence or lawlessness of any kind would ruin their cause.

"When our conference ended, the committee when our conference ended, the committee said: "Governor, we pledge you not only that there shall be no interference with the convicts, but you may trust them to us. If necessary we ourselves will guard them and see that no one interferes with them."

They Kept Their Promise. They religiously kept their promise, and the great strike continued peaceful to its end. I mention as significant of the feeling of the niners that at the recent meeting at Blue Creek mines I referred to these things, and told them that no matter what they told them that no matter what they failed to gain by the strike, they gained the greatest moral victories in the cause of labor in the past quarter of a century, which entitled them to the highest confidence of the people of Alabama and gave them the strongest title to help in the matter of removing the convicts, and that I knew they would stand by the laws of Alabama and approve my course in saying that I would uphold the laws. "These sentiments met with unbounded applause, which showed that the miners were determined to stand by the laws of plause, which showed that the miners were determined to stand by the laws of the state. The miners who are not native born are mostly Scotch, English, German and Irish who are very proud of their adopted country and believe in peace and order, and feel that without it the country would not be worth living in."

Nobody Need Be Afraid. "You may say emphatically that there is no danger whatever of lawlessness on the part of selves would not permit it, and, secondly, the power of the state is so strong that even the few hotter heads who might wish to try an few hotter heads who might wish to try an appeal to force, know that it would be worse than foolish. Nobody need be deterred from coming to the mining regions or making investments there. I will mention for the benefit of the doubters, that agitators from Tennessee some months since did go to Birmingham to get concert of action in releasing the convicts, and the Alabama miners would not listen to them.

"Alabama is a great state and we have a great "Alabama is a great state and we have a great people, and we are going right ahead to develop it and prosper, and this cannot be done without law, and our miners, as well as all other classes, are determined that the law shall be supreme in Alabama."

The governor said he felt it as his duty to say this much, as the matters referred to con-cerned the welfare of the whole people, and he did not wish outsiders to have wrong im-pressions of Alabama. He declined saying anything about the canvass for governor ex-cept that he had no doubt whatever of his own

BAD CONDITION OF A BANK.

Just $34 Left in Its Vaults Out of $140,000 Deposited.

MILFORD, Mich., November 22.—State Bank Examiner Sherwood closed the Milford State bank September 16th and reported that the bank had failed. "Failed" is a mild word to bank had failed. "Failed" is a mild word to use in reference to this institution. The bank was established sixteen years ago as a national bank. The principal promoters were the Wilhelm brothers and relatives, with a fine line of directors. One was ex-Governor J. W. Beal, of Flint. The Wilhelms were young men who were known as "hustlers," and they went into all sorts of speculations. They and their relatives owned the controlling stock. The bank had deposits as high as $140,000. The morning after the bank examiners had taken charge there was only $34 in cash in the bank. The assets showed $142,709 and the liabilities $132,685, but it is hard to see how the assets can be made to yield hard to see how the assets can be made to yield over $15,000. Worthless loans, crazy Kansas boom real estate, patent rights, speculations and poor personal paper represent the balance.

A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT. Coupling Pin Driven Into a Man's Thigh.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., November 22.—[Special.]
One of the most horrible accidents recorded in the city lately, was that which befell Flagman Crowell Sharkle this morning at 3 o'clock and from which he died at 8:50 o'clock. He was preparing to go out with an early freight train and was in the Richmond and Danville freight yard coupling cars. While waiting with the coupler of one of the cars, a car broke loose from a train some distance from him and ran back down the grade, catching and crushing him between the cars and driving a coupling pin, which he had in his hand, into his right groin to the bone, causing a compound fraegroin to the bone, causing a compound fracture of the thighbone. The screams of the young man soon brought assistance and he was immediately carried to St. Peter's hospital and Drs. Gibbon and Wilder summoned. Every attention was given him and everything done for him that was possible, but from the nature of the accident the physicians stated from the first that he was fatally injured. Every hour of the day marked a change for the worse and after twelve hours of dreadful agony, he passed away in the prime of manhood and full vigor of youth. Those who attended him said they never witnessed more dreadful suffering or a more gallant fight for life.

IT WAS A BLACK TIGER-

The Sheriff of Lee County, Alabama, Captures a "Blind Tiger."

OFBLIKA, Ala., November 22.—[Special.]— Sheriff C. T. McGraw accomplished a shrewd ploce of detective work the other day. Opelika is a prohibition city, and, as usual in such cases, is the habitat of the peculiar anima known as the "blind tiger." One of these had its headquarters on North Railroad street. It had arranged itself so that any one could knock and he would be asked what he wanted, but the tiger was never seen. The party would hand in his money and his beer or whisky was handed out with a gloved hand. The Lee county grand jury is in session and several witnesses went before it and swore they pur-chased liquor from this particular "tiger," but did not see the party operating it.

Solicitor Lee reported the condition of affairs to Judge Carmichael, who ordered Sheriff
McGraw to arrest any parties he could find in the house. The sheriff carried a deputy along with him. They decided to try the "tiger" on the liquor question; so the deputy knocked and was asked what he wanted. He replied, a pint of whisky, and was told to hand in 50 cents, which he did. In due time the gloved hand handed out the pint of whisky. The deputy immediately seized the hand and held it, notwithstanding the herculean efforts of the "tiger" to get loose, until the sheriff broke open the door and found a negro man, named Henry Ashford, in the clutches of the deputy He was at once indicted and committed jail in default of a five-hundred-dollar bond.

A "DRY" DAY IN NASHVILLE. Officials Enforce the Sunday Law Against

NASHVILLE, Tenn., November 22.—[Special.] For the first Sunday in several years Nashville was "dry" today. It was impossible to buy a drink in the central portion of the city, and but few of the out-of-the-way saloons did business. The cause of this was an order issued by the board of public works, of which a new member was elected by the reform city council recently. Heretofore many of the leading saloons have had a side door open with the silent consent of the city officials. But the police have been instructed to enforce the law. A close watch was kept today, but only one man was caught selling.

Just as the passengers began to get off one of them ran his hand in the pocket of Mr. Jack Veal, an old farmer who lives near Notasulga, and got his pocketbook, which contained $60 in money. Veal caught him in the collar, but he jerked loose, ran out and immed off the car clearly pursued by him in the collar, but he jerked loose, ran out and jumped off the car, closely pursued by a little boy who was with Veal, and several policemen. He ran several hundred yards and was met by R. W. Gorman, who saw the policemen in pursuit, and he immediately arrested him. He was lodged in jail, and Veal went around and at once recognized him. The grand jury being in session, Veal went before it, and had him indicted for robbery. He says his name is Frank J. Williams and says his name is Frank J. Williams, an claims to be from Mississippi. TROUBLE AMONG THE RACES-Several Negroes Whipped and One of Them

Shot.

Kosciusco, Miss., November 22.—For the past few days trouble has existed among the races of Attala county. A crowd of whites went to the house of Dan Gladney, colored, shot him and ceverely whipped several other negroes. George Pickle, a white man, was today arrested as one of the leaders, and officers are in pursuit of the others. While Deputy Sneriff Smythe, Jr., was guarding the shanty of Dan Gladney, his pistol was accidentally discharged while he was examining it. The ball struck and instantly killed a negro named Kennedy. The origin of the trouble is not known.

When the Jury Brought in a Verdiet and He Was Ordered Back to Prison. Foreign News Generally.

LONDON, November 22.—There was com-menced and finished at the Old Bailey yes-terday one of the most remarkable trials in the history of British jurisprudence. It was the trial, on the charge of blackmail, of a mysterious individual known as the "French Colo nous individual known as the "French Colo-nel," as "Le Grande," as "Briscony Grant," as "Captain Anderson," and as "Charles Grant." This distinguished criminal's real name is not known. He says he is a Dane, American criminal, who has "worked" both the United States and Europe for years past, and who has made large sums of money by his operations as a knight of industry. There were a number of charges piled up against the "French Colonel," but the one which he was placed on trial for today was that of threatening to murder Lady Jedsel and the Baroness Bolsover.

In the opening remarks of the counsel for the prosecution it was stated that the prisoner, in addition to having threatened to murder those two ladies, had also threatened a similar fate to a number of other ladies of title. Last June it was charged he sent out a number of letters addressed to ladies of wealth and position demanding and making them horrible threats as to what he would do unless his demands were complied with. After the testimony had been taken and after the judge had charged the jury, "French Colonel" fainted in the dock. When revived he engaged in a furious fight with the police around him. A dozen policeman, assisted by a number of prison wardeus, seemed to be unable to restrain him. There was a tremendous sensation in the courtroom, a number of ladies faintingland others screaming horribly. The judge was unable for a long time to restore order. Finally the jury found the prisoner guilty on both charges. fate to a number of other ladies of title. Last

The exchange of verbal declarations between the French and Russian foreign ministers is, in the opinion of The Novoe Vremya, a sufficient guarantee of the stability of the present relations between France and Russia, and there is no necessity for a formal written agreement between the two governments.

Over 2,000 Men Are at Work on the Important Enterprise.

Brussels, November 22.—On July 31st last, 1,719 workmen were engaged upon the Congo railroad. A little later 500 new laborers arrived, and the actual number employed on September 15th was 2,220. These workmen, who are largely Zanzibari, Krumen and Haussa, are under the charge of 200 white men, including fifteen civil engineers, nine superintendents of grading, seventeen boss carpenters, ten keepers of machinery and supplies, twenty-one blacksmiths, three machinists, three boes stonecutters, nineteen masons, a number of physicians, and other heads of departments. The track has been laid from Matadi to the Mapozo Valley, and some distance up the valley toward the Palabalia highlands, and this point once attained, the railroad will encounter few other engineering difficulties all the way to Stanley pool. Three locomotives are now on the track, and all the material is transported by steam. Foundations have been laid for a large bridge across the Mpozo river. The work is making the most favorable progress. The health of Europeans is excellent.

A Young Couple Give Up Their Right to

VIENNA, November 22.—At Hofburg yesterday an imposing and highly important ceremony occurred when Archduchess Louise, of Tuscany, and Prince Frederick Augustus, of Saxony, renounced their title and rights to the Austrian throne. This was done as a necessary step before the marriage of the young couple, which took place in the presence of the Austrian court and ministers and a large assembly of distinguished people.

In the evening there was a state business at the palace, as which the emperor of a taking proposed the health of the king and queen of Saxony, who were among the guests. After the banquet the bridal party and a number of representatives of royalty attended the performance of "Lohengrin" at the Royal opera-

He Scatters the Theories of Modern Astrono mers to the Four Winds. OTTAWA, Ont., November 22.—Professor E. Stone Wiggins, the Canadian astronomer, was interviewed by The Republic correspondent regarding the recent eclipse of the moon.

"I have nothing to report," said the professor, "but how strange it is that astronomers still talk about the moon having no atmosphere, and yet they never see a lunar eclipse without witnessing proof of its existence. During the total submersion Sander exception. of its existence. During the total submersion Sunday evening the lunar disc was clearly visible and of the color of smoke. If she possessed an atmosphere it would have been as invisible as a black cat in a dark cellar. Three days after new moon we can see that ring of light around her whole globe, which would be impossible if she did not possess an atmosphere to diffuse the color of light, for the sun can illuminate only half of her sphere. The fact is, the moon would be forever invisible did she not possess an atmosphere."
"Have you made your views on this subject public?"

The Sun Not Heat.

"Yes, hundreds of times. In 1864 I published a book of three hundred pages entitled "The Architecture of the Heavens' to prove that the sun is not a body of heat which im-The Architecture of the Heavens' to prove that the sun is not a body of heat which imparts light and heat to space, but is a dark body of electricity which creates, by electric force, light and heat in the atmosphere of the planets. Between the planets there is neither light nor heat. It was many years before the old fogy school of astronomers would renounce the 'fire theory' and adopt mine. But white they have at last admitted that the sun's photosphere is electric, they still believe that all the space of the solar system is illuminated by the sun. Why, if this were so the heavens would be as bright to us at night as by day. This is why we cannot see our second moon, because it has no atmosphere to create light by friction with the solar rays. In this same book I also demonstrated that the moon has an atmosphere and now I begin to see that my labor of thirty years ago is about to bear fruit, for the Lick telescope has just revealed snow on the summet of the lunar mountains."

"That reminds me that this great telescope has discovered something peculiar about one of the moons of Jupiter," interjected the reporter.

"Yes, that it is double. I am yery doubt-of the moons of capital,

"Yes, that it is double. I am very doubtful of this. If the hemispheres were a few thousand miles apart, one might maintain its position by revolving about the other, but to remain stationary—the thing is impossible."

"Some of the stars are double, are they not?"

Cannot Fall on One Another.

"Yes, but the parts revolve round each other. The Lick observers probably have the idea of Dr. Olbers, an astronomer of the last century, in their minds without knowing it. He thought that a large planet must have once revolved in the great space between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, and that it burst and formed the four asteroids. Ceres, Pallas, Vesta and Juno. That idea, however, was abandoned years ago, when we came to discover hundreds of astardidge, and plants in the reciprocal contents.

of asteroids or small planets in that region. Biclas's comet really did burst in two parts a Biclas's comet really did burst in two parts a few years ago. An astronomer was looking at it through a telescope at that moment. The halves gradually receded from each other, and now they are two distinct comets with different periods of revolution.

"The division was caused by the parts becoming so highly electrified, and this it was which caused them to recede afterward. If such a calamity could happen a planet, could not one planet fall upon another, and is it not believed even by astronomers that the earth will fall into the sun? If our moon were to stop suddenly in her orbit and run toward the earth she would never reach her. It would require some weeks to fall to our planet, and then we would have traveled so far that the satellite would fall into another orbit in trying to reach us. Even were the earth and moon stationary in space, I very much doubt that they could come together, for their mutual electric force would repel them. Of course were such a trial to take place our earth would be stopped of all animal life, for the moon's proximity would submerge all our continents. Then the into the sun. Even if such an event were now transpiring we would not notice it; besides the sun would repel us as it does the comets, and we would soon be traveling again in the old orbit."

"What is our moon's distance from the earth?" asked the reporter.

"Our books say, in round numbers, 240,000 miles, but it is probably nearer 300,000 miles. We cannot possibly even guess the distance of any of the heavenly bodies, either from us or from the sun."

any of the heavenly bodies, either from us or from the sun."
"You have not predicted any storms for some time, Professor Wiggins?"
"No; for all the dangerous storms this autumn are in the eastern hemisphere, which accounts for my silence. I could have shaken up the British people this year, but did not want any more of the old reward."

MET A HORRIBLE DEATH.

Fell Down the Elevator Shaft and Was Terribly Mangled.

San Francisco, November 22.—Herman Wiese, a porter employed by a Sansome street druggist, met with a horrible death Friday afternoon in the lofty Chronicle building. He walked into the elevator shaft on the top floor and was dashed with awful velocity to the basement, where the elevator cage received his remains, already mutilated in their descent. Death was almost instantaneous, and though the patrol wagon took him to the receiving bespital for surgical sid, it could be seen that life was extinct before the body could be removed to the corridor.

Wiese went to the top floor with some chemicals. He was seen to walk over to the elevator shaft and snapped open the fastening of the iron lattice door. Wiese jerked at the door, which slides back. The yawning depth was only a step in front of him. Wiese, like a man unconscious, or in utter ignorance of what he was about, stepped into the shaft and disappeared like a flash.

In his terrible fall Wiese bounded from one side of the shaft to the other, and at one place struck against an iron railing. His right arm caught the rail and was wrenched completely from his body. When he dropped on the cage his yielding flesh was tangled up so badly in the iron network that it took nearly half an hour to release him. Deceased was married, aged 35, and a native of Germany. Terribly Mangled.

GEORGIA'S MILITIA.

An Interesting Talk with Lieutenant Satterlee, U. S. A.

HOW ATLANTA'S TROOPS ARE RATED.

General Facts About the State Volunteers How They Bear Inspection. Georgia's Troops.

Lieutenant C. B. Satterlee, of the United States army, who has been inspecting the state volunteer troops for two months by order of the governor, is one of the hardest worked men in Georgia. To those not familiar with the duties of his office it may seem a trivial affair to review the militia, but that is only the pleasant part of it. Inspection, in the thorough way it is carried on, is an arduous task, requiring weeks of planning and then much office work before he reporting is complete.

A glance at the voluminous papers in the adjutant general's office, which are already filed as the report of the inspection up to date, would startle many.

Lieutenant Satterlee was bearded in his den at the capitol yesterday. He was engrossed in the work of mapping a tour of inspection for the next two weeks, which is to begin by a review of the Macon troops tomorrow. But Lieutenant Satterlee is always interested in a point of tactics, and yesterday he found time to lay down his pen and chat a while on matters military.

"Lieutenant, there is much curiosity to know the result of your inspection of the Atlanta troops—how did they rate?" was asked of him

"Well, the Atlanta Rifles and the Gate City Guard presented very, very good company drills, indeed," said the officer, "the formation of the company in each case being prompt and soldierly. The formation of the Guard was without an error. The attention and steadiness of eht men in ranks during inspection was the best in these two companies.

"The drill of the Grady Cadets was also good, but showed want of regular instruction. The formation of the Cadets was inaccurate in several details.

"The drill of the Zouaves, while it was fairly well executed, exhibited tendencies toward the zouave drill. The manuel of arms partook entirely too much of the zonave

"In all of these companies there is want of instruction in squad drilling, or the school of the soldier. But it may be stated in reference to the Gate City Guard that instruction under this head was fairly comprehensive. The set-ting up exercises were performed by the whole company.

This was the only company that gave any exhibition of instruction in the skirmish

"In the Gate City |Guard and the Atlanta Rifles there was instruction shown in the foundation of the guard details, and the formation of the Guard detail by First Sergeant L. D. White, of the guard, was entirely accurate. The Gate City Guard is also entitled to

"In all of the Atlanta companies, however, not enough care and attention is given to the condition of pieces and equipments. In the Atlanta Rifles, the Grady Cadets and the Gate City Guard, I found a lot of new pieces that were in excellent condition; but the old pieces, or those not ordinarily presented in inspection, were rusty and dirty. With the Zouaves most of the nickle-plated pieces were found without rear sights-having been removed to facilitate the fancy handling-and several were rusty in the chambers.

'I must compliment the Atlanta Rifles on their armory. It is the best I have yet seen on my inspection tour.

"The Governor's Horse Guards exhibited evidence of general instruction in the company drill-mounted inspection. There was, however, a lack of facility in passing from one formation to another. During the inspection of the Horse Guards there was entirely too much talking in ranks. The company's drill dismounted was neither complete nor good. No instruction appears to have been given in the school of the soldier, and no attention was given to guard mounting sentry duty. The arms and equipments of the Horse Guards are in good condition.

"In justice to the Atlanta Artillery, I will say that the pieces, carriages, lin caissons are all in good condition, and are very neatly painted. This, by the way, is an ex pense borne by the company alone. The drill Artillery Atlanta

The artillery gave no evidence of instruction in ion of guard detail, or stable, or park guard duty. This company gave no exhibition of drill in the school of the soldier." "Well, lieutenant, as a whole how do the

"Very well, indeed, in the company drills.

That is their best feature. But there is not enough attention paid to the practical part of the work. Georgia has, though, a remarkably fine body of men in her volunteer ranks. They are men of intelligence the flower of the state—and they are all gentlemen. Where that condition of affairs is found there is also found a great deal of esprit. In spite of the lack of encouragement and support shown the state militia, Georgia has, perhaps, the finest body of voluntee s to be found in the United States. The military spirit observable among these troops is something to be complimented.

These troops are all much in need of field outfits-knapsacks, haversacks, cups, leggins, It is to be regretted that these troops are not furnished with these equipments from

"I guess I'd sit down on it."

"In one colored company I found scarcely two uniforms of the same facing," continued the lieutenant.

"I asked a colored captain who had a proud array before him, how many of these fine fellows he could command to defend his barracks in case of a riot.

"In case there was any shooting, I don't guess I could count on any, he replied.

If there was any shooting going on I don't guess he would, he frankly admitted.

what the inspecting owner water. It is the confusion common?"

"It arises," he replied, "because of some ignorance as to what constitutes an inspection—what points are rated as important. I cover the ground of the school of the soldier, the school of the company, of the skirmisher, or guard duty, discipline, the condition of arms, equipments, clothing, armory, and the order in which arms are kept. In addition to all that, I go deeply into practical work and instruction of a company. The state militia, however, is fast learning these points.

"I will relate briefly how I have found "I will relate briefly how I have round things in my present review. I have met with some very good composition, the general instruction being progressive and including more than mere manual of arms and company drill. I find in a great many cases pieces and equipments rusty and not well cared for. This does not speak well. A good soldier takes care of his weapon. care of his weapon.

The companies have an erroneous idea as to the matter of enlistment. I find that men are doing duty with organizations, paying dues, but are not enlisted men. This is a very erroneous idea, and there are others like it. I find as a rule records of enlistment papers are not well kept. In many cases the date of the list was not kept. The law requires that men belonging to a military organization shall enlist, the period of enlistment being one year. Also, in regard to discharge, the custom is loose. The custom among some companies is to discharge men without authority of the adjutant general. The record of discharge is also incomplete, and in many cases no record at all is kept and none is furnished the adjutant general. This is all crude and unsoldierly and done without warrant. As for books of record and retained papers, they are not kept; nor are troops at all familiar "Nor is the standard of discipline what it "Nor is the standard of discipline what it might be. Matters of military etiquette and courtesy are not uniformly observed. In but very few organizations do I find any system of theoretical instruction of officers, non-commissioned officers or men. The attendance on drill is not satisfactory, but this is in great measure excusable on account of the winter season—men are too busy to be perfectly regular.

"In but one or two cases, thus far inspected, "In but one or two cases, thus far inspected, have I found any systematic, or regular course of instruction for recruits. A recruit, when he joins a company, should be put through a careful and thorough course of instruction of the school of the soldier. In this way alone he can be prepared to enterinto drill. If companies would observe this rule they would be much better off.

much better off.
"I also find no instruction given in the use of handling rifles. The troops are not familiar with the use of the sight. The automatic sight, its principles and adaptations are not understood. There was but one man—the left guide of the Gate City Guard—who could tell not be used in target shooting, but which could not be called a regular target practice.

"I am glad to see on the part of the troops the adoption of a regular field dress for practical service," said Lieutenant Satterlee with considerable emphasis, "and to do away with full dress—except for gala occasions. Over the state the qualities of undress uniforms is very good, and some attention seems to have been given to its fit and adaption to field service."

I have now covered all points north of the Atlanta and Augusta line, including Atlanta and the five col-ored companies of Augusta. My tour of De-cember will be the companies south and west of Macon and Atlanta. It is a hard matter to make schedules fit together seventimes and make schedules fit together sometimes, and besides the inconvenience of starting, often before daylight, there is the other unpleasant delay of having to miss whole days at half-way stations. Consequently, it is not possible to inspect more than one company a day, and quite often one or more days must be lost. It quite often one or more days must be lost. It is now going forward just as fast as possible. The review will be finished by the middle of

The review will be finished by the middle of February."

Lieutenant Satterlee is now engaged in compiling a military code of the state. It will be the first one published. The adjutant general has just compiled a register of the officers of the volunteer troops, which is similar to that of the regular United States army register. It will give the lineal rank of the officers of the several arms of the service—artillery, infantry and cavalry, and will show their rank in several grades. heir rank in several grades.

The State Troops The last report of the adjutant general showed the total strength of Georgia's volunteer troops to be 4,012 men. These were divided as follows: The white volunteers, all arms, officers and men, 2,962; the colored volunteers all arms, 10% the colored volunteers, all arms, 1,050.

UNITED STATES WEATHER MAP FOR TODAY.

The weather symbols on the map are as follows:

OCLEAR OFAIR & CLOUDY TORAINS SNOW

Dotted lines, or isothermal, pass through points of equal temperature. Unbroken lines, or isobars, pass through points of equal air pressure. The arrows fly with the wind. The figures at the end of the isotherms show the temperature all along that line. The isobars, or lines of equal pressure, run round a "high" cold wave or a "low" rain area, just as hillside ditches run round a knoll. The isobars rise one above the other with the grade of the atmospheric hill, or descend with the grade of the atmospheric valley. When you see the figures 30.01 at the end of a line it means that at all places where the line runs the air is high enough to balance in weight 30.01 inches of mercury. The same for 30.2, 30.3, etc. The cold comes with the high atmosphere, and rain usually with a "low."

Copious rains have occurred along the gulf and throughout the lower Mississippi valley and the lower take region. The barometer over all of these sections is very low, with the cen ter of lowest pressure between Detroit and St. Louis. The temperature is high along the Atlantic coast, with much colder weather in the northwest. The change in temperature in Atlanta was very slight, the thermometer registering 58 degrees at 8 a. m. yesterday, and 60 at 8 o'clock last evening. The percentage of humidity was very high, the atmosphere being nearly saturated with moisture. The weather will remain clear during the next forty-eight hours. AT THE THEATER.

"Mr. Barnes of New York" Tonight. The fine romantic drama of Mr. Archibald C. Gunter will be presented today at the opera house by the company of the New Broadway theater, under the management of Mr. Frank W. Sanger, with its original scenery, elaborate costumes, mechanical effects and perfect staging This will be a great treat, and one that few theater goers will miss. It has been an instantaneous success from the first presentation, and ever since it has filled houses. The Montreal Herald said of it last October, 13th:

"'Mr. Barnes of New York' is an instant Montreal success. The large andience which was at the Academy last night will spread the news that Gunter's great novel, dramatized by himself, has been put upon the road by a clever company, which will finish the season with honor to themwhich will finish the season with honor to them-elves and with money in the pocket of the man-agement. Should the critic be asked to tell agement. Should the critic be asked to tell whether the play is a comedy, tragedy, nelodrama, etc., it would, indeed, be hard to answer. As a matter of fact it is a mixture of comedy and tragedy, and, in several scenes, the latter is so tragedy, and, in several scenes, the latter is so clever that it may be compared with many of the best tragedies which have been placed on the stage of the period. 'Mr. Barnes of New York' is then, a comedy-tragedy, and one which sends the audience away with expressions which are loud in its praise. The novel from which the play was written was popular from the time the first edition was issued, and the play has likewise made an impression upon the public and critic alike."

"The Fast Mail."

The Memphis Ledger of October 9th said of this popular play: "All who saw 'The Fast Mail' at the Lyceum last night were highly delighted with the realistic stage effects. The steamboat, the train of cars and the Niagara Falls are produced with a faithfulness that is startling. The play is by far the most realistic that has been to Memphis. The plat is a delighter than the stage of the play is by far the most realistic that has been to Memphis. the most realistic that has been to memphis. The plot is made interesting, the actors interpret their roles with ability and the effice production is well worth the time and price to see it. Railroad men of this city bestow the most enthusiastic praise upon the real train that runs over the stage. They agree that the effect is wonderful, and seem never to tire when discussing 'The Fast Mail.'"

"Prince and Pauper." In Daniel Frohman's production of the new In Daniel Frohman's production of the new play "The Frince and the Pauper" at the opera house Friday, there will be a series of picturësque scenes portraying London in the sixteenth century and a stage fully peopled with representatives of English life in that period, which will make the spectacular effect of the drama uncommonly attractive. It is also well supplied with genuine comedy. Elsie Leslie's acting of this role has gained her great reputation in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, and there is little fear of any other organization appearing in this play as there has never been any young actress save Elsie Leslie who, being young enough to look the characters, was gifted with dramatic ability to play them.

From The Mobile Register.

The minstrels gave a very laughable performance in the theater last night. The minstrels had a programme, but the audience's part of the entertainment was impromptu, and consisted in what is known as "constant applause," which took the shape of loud laughter, which at times made what was being done on the stage seem of secondary importance. It was one of the most good-natured and highly-delighted audiences ever seen in the theater. The dress circle was full, while the gallery was jammed full, and a row of laughing negro faces hung over the outer rail, all the mouths open at once and all the eyes bulging in the intensity of the enjoyment. In the parquet was agoodly number of white people, who enjoyed mensely the enjoyment of the people upstairs.

joyed mmensely the enjoyment of the people ap-stairs.

As for the minstrel show, it was remarkably clever in most of its features. Whenever the per-formers were called upon to make fun, they made ait with will. Only in the specialties, where they ttempted to imitate the white man's negro min-strel [show, was there any stiffness. The ollo was good, andmuch of the music was well sung, with good voice. Then followed a very clever Chinese impersonation by George Catlein; next, some acrobaticper formances, and then clever feats by jugglers, calvan. Pamplin and Denton, said to be the only negro jugglers in the world. The enter-tainment closed with a plantation piece that made the audience howl.

LUMPKIN, Ga., November 22.—[Special.]—
The colored teachers' institute for this county will convene in Lumpkin on the 28th of this month. Quite an interesting programme has been mapped out for the occasion. More than twenty different subjects pertaining to education will be discussed, by way of essays and lectures. The exercises will not be confined to the teachers alone, but the preachers will also take part in the discussions. Space will not permit mention of all the names and subjects. Besides the reading of essays being assigned to a number of female teachers, names and subjects given in the programme, we no

Boddie, of Lumpkin, subject, "Long Terms"; Rev. P. F. Curry, of the twenty-first district, subject, "Moral Training." The negative of Miss Eliza Cullen's subject will hardly, we think, be mentioned by any member of the institute, her subject being "Ought the Teacher Care for Children During Playtime?"

Dr. Samuel P. Hunt, a citizen of Augusta, a veteran of the Mexican war. He has in a possession a medal which he wears with mmendable pride. In 1876 the National Asciation of Veterans was formed, and badges are made and electrotyped from four cannon aptured in the City of Mexico.

On the medals are emblematic designs of the different arms of the service. Around them a inscribed the names Buena Vista, Monterey, terro Gordo, Palo Alto, and other far-famed attle places. There are only eight Mexican meterans left in Richmond county—the others are answered the last roll call.

Dr. Hunt prizes his commission of brigade argeon, signed by George W. Randolph, sectary of the confederate states. He was in the restern army on the staff of that gallant gennal, whom all Augusta honored, General John K. Jackson. Dr. Hunt, like many mutherners, is proud of his birth and lineage. He can trace his ancestry through nineteen generations, and will transmit to his family the record of a noble life.

When the tattered battle flag of Cobb's legion was borne in the expesition hall on opening day by Mr. Dunbar, in front of the Confederate Veterans, many arose to honor those war-worn men, and the time will come when mot one person will remain seated when they pass in a procession, which will become shorter and shorter as the years roll by.

Drowning.

WAYNESBORO, Ga., November 22.—[Special.]—Colonel J. S. Bell went through too many hardships during the war to be hurt by cold baths, otherwise he might be worse off today. Last Monday he, with Mr. Jones Greeham, ran Brier creek for ducks. While pulling the boat over a log his foot allipped, and he went via the McGinty route, and if he didn's find bottom as did Mr. McGinty, it was because his cork leg, which he uses in lieu of one lost at Manassas, objected to travelling in that direction. At any rate he bobbed serenely up and crawled back into the boat. Most any other man with a twenty-mile boat ride and a ten-mile buggy trip between himself and day clothes, would have been satisfied with on effort to find bottom. Not so with him. He hadn't gone far before a limb caught him under the arms and he went out buckwards. His head was in the lead this time, and he probably would have found bottom, but that cork leg again refused to leave the surface. He gave the matter up after his second failure and returned home with several ducks and two "duckings." Buena Vista, Ga., November 22.—[Spe cial.]—The killing of R. E. Butt by A. B. Jackson, telegraphed The Constitution yesterday, is the topic of conversation today. The particulars of the tragedy are as follows; Mr. Butt came out of a butcher shop with a large knife in his hand and advanced toward Mr. Jackson. The latter days his nitted and Mr. Jackson. The latter drew his pistol and fired, but missed Butt. Three more shots were then fired, and Butt fell. Three of the shots made mortal wounds. No verdict has Albany.

Albany, Ga., November 22.—[Special.]—George Wilson, the famous minstrel, was invited to join some friends in a 'possum supper after his performance was over. This entertainment was promised him when here on a previous visit, and the announcement that he was to be here led those friends to have the spread all prepared.

Mr. Wilson and a few members of his troupe were invited to join in this repast, and when they sat down to the table they saw before them three large, fat 'possums decorated in a delightful manner with the requisite amount of "taters."

It was a genuine old-fashioned continues. yet been given by the coroner's jury, although ion until a late hour last night.

The cause of the tragedy is that some days ago Butt was put in the guardhouse by Marshal Jackson on the charge of being dis-orderly. Butt afterwards made threats, and knowing the two men a difficulty has been feared. The deceased is a brother of Judge W. B. Butt, of Columbus. Jackson says he killed Butt in self-defense.

THE FACTS IN THE CASE. Why Major Snively Whipped Cadet Gus

Why Major Snively Whipped Cadet Gus Clewis.

Thomasville, Ga., November 22.—[Special.]—The facts in the Sniyely-Lewis whipping case are as follows: Major R. H. Snively, a professor in the South Georgia college and commandant of the cadets, had occasion to reprove Cadet Gus Clewis for misbehavior, and in order to make his reproof effectual he undertook to punish him according to the military idea, but, meeting with insolent and insulting deportment still, he proceeded in the good old-fashioned way—the way our fathers, following the precepts of Solomon, trod—and did both the subject and the object deserved justice. On the following day the professor was served with a warrant and ordered to appear at court Saturday, when he demanded an indictment by the grand jury. Pending this state of affairs, the trustees of the college had a called meeting Tuesday evening to look into the matter, and adopted the following resolution unanimously:

Resolved, That after a careful investigation of the conduct of Major R. H. Snively in inflicting punishment upon Cadet Clewis, we find nothing worthy of condemnation; on the contrary, the action of Major Snively meets with the hearty approval of this board.

Grantville, Ga., November 22.—[Special.] Yesterday Paul Stafford took his gun and started out to kill rabbits. On his way he met a negro, who went with him some distance. When they got out of sight of any house the negro said to him: "I know where there is a heap of ducks," and asked Paul to let him have the gun, and Paul, thinking he was all right, let him have it. The negro went a little fast into a swamp, and called to Paul to come there; that he had found the ducks. Paul went down there, and when he reached the negro the latter leveled the gun on Paul and pointed it in his face. Then he searched him, and told him to run or he would blow his brains out. About New York.

Governor Campbell, of Ohio, since he un dertook the experiment of ignoring one of the leading planks of his party's platform and made so dismal a failure, is inclined to be a little flighty in his suggestions. He is reported as saying that there is a deep-seated feeling in the west that it would be "a very good thing if New York would permit the democratic party out of that state to select its cand date for president next year." To this Governor Campbell adds: "This feeling that New York has been selfish in claiming the honor of naming the democratic for president in the past is deepseated throughout the west."

Now, it is fair to say that these remarks do not have the Campbell twang about them. What the governor says is unusually full of vigor, individuality and common sense, whereas the statements we have quoted are full of nonsense. Yet they are credited to him.

It is nonsense, for instance, to talk about New York "permitting" the democratic party of the country to choose a candidate outside of that state. It is difficult to believe that such a childish idea emanated from Governor Campbell. The democrats of New York are no more responsible for the situation than the democrats of Montana, and have no more control of it. When the democratic party chooses to nominate a candidate out side of New York, what is to prevent it?

It is nonsense also to talk about the state of New York "claiming" the honor of naming the democratic candidate for president. Who ever heard of the democrats of New York making any such claim? The nomination has gone to New York heretofore and will go there again next year as the inevitable result of a situation which the democrats are powerless to prevent or control. It is not a pleasant situation; it is certainly not such a situation as the democrat would make for themselves; but it is not to be helped.

The nomination has gone to New York heretofore and will go there again because the electoral vote of that state is absolutely essential to the success of the party, and for that reason the party there has to be cuddled, nursed and harmonized. Even then success is not absolutely assured, as we saw Governor Compbell is a great campainger, but he is not n uch of a talker.

Christian Socialism.

The recent Protestant Episcopal church congress at Washington had so much to say in favor of Christian socialism that many sanguine reformers have jumped to the conclusion that the churches are about to revolutionize our industrial and social conditions.

Undoubtedly, the Christian religion will become a more active factor of our civilization in coming years, but if the average socialist expects it to be mixed up with his fads and fancies, he will be badly disappointed.

The Episcopalians who discussed socialis at Washington indulged in some very vague and indefinite talk. Some of them took the position that the churches should be more active in looking after the material welfare of the people, and should make their influence felt in politics and legislation. Henry George's single tax theory was very favorably spoken of, and the drift of opinion seemed to be on the side of a benevolent and paternal socialistic policy on the part of federal, state and municipal governments.

But nothing was said about abolishing poverty or enabling people to live without work. These Christian socialists hold very conservative views. They believe in helping their fellow men, and they have an idea that it is their duty to fight unjust and oppressive economic conditions forced upon us by a plutocratic government. They are willing to try the best features of socialism, but they draw the line when any proposed experiment threatens the rights and liberties of individuals, whether they are rich or

While nothing definite was agreed upon in the conference at Washington, we believe that it will be productive of good results. Other denominations besides the Episcopalians are becoming interested in the reform called Christian secialism, and it cannot be doubted that when the religious element makes its influence felt our social and industrial problems will assume a different shape and be settled upon a basis designed to benefit the majority without injuring the minority.

The phrase "Christian socialism" may be distasteful to some. It strikes us that the name of the movement is of minor importance. If we are on the eve of a marked improvement in material as well as spiritual conditions, there should be no quibbling over words. Socialism has its good and bad points. If we utilize what is best in it there will be less to dread from its evil side.

A Ruinous Policy.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat calls attention to the fict that the cotton receipts for the past week smashed all previous

The receipts at New Orleans for the week just ended show an increase of about 52 per cent, the largest amount that port or any other port ever received in a single week. Of course this rapid marketing of the crop has forced prices downward, and has d exaggerated estimates to be made Our farmers are cutting their own throats when they send cotton to market under such litions. Much of the mischief already one is irreparal le, but the farmers who are not in honor bound to part with their cotton to settle their indebtedness, should sell no nore for several months. If the remainder of the crop is held back from market, and a united effort is made to reduce production next year, prices will have an upward tendency, and the effect will be felt almost mmediately on the present crop. The worst thing that the southern farmers can do is to continue rushing their staple to market. Such a policy means still lower prices, more debts and mortgages, and a financial depression that will injure every line of business and industry, and retard our progress for years.

Hold your cotton if you can. You cannot afford to sell it now.

The Weather Chief Endorses Our Maps. A few days ago, in calling attention to the maps appearing daily in THE CONSTITU-TION, the statement was made that during the season of unsettled weather this paper would have the best weather service in the country. This was claiming a good deal, but it was literally true. Nothing but a map can show the weather outlook satisfactorily, and no paper heretofore has produced in the same space a weather map comparable in clearness to the one we give every day. In order that the public may know what an expert thinks of it, the following telegram from Major H. H. C. Dunwoody, acting chief of the weather bureau, is printed:

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 21.—Park Mor-rill, Local Forecast Official, Atlanta, Ga.: Noth-ing I have done to improve the weather service gives me more pleasure than the ordering of the special reports which made it possible to repro-duce the weather map in THE CONSTITUTION. It will prove to be one of the most valuable features weather service, and you are to be congrat ulated upon its success. Send a copy to each local forecast official.

Acting Chief of the Weather Bureau.

We may say here that Major Dunwoody has on foot plans for a state service which is likely to surpass anything of the kind heretofore attempted, and he could hardly have selected a better man for their execution than Mr. Morrill, the director for Geor gia. The best state service up to date is that in Ohio, but if the plans for Georgia are carried out, we will go beyond even the Buckeye State in weather matters. Our cotton crop, our shipping, our fruit interests and the exposure of certain towns to floods make such a service a necessity in Georgia.

A Cruel Law.

The other day a poor fellow in New York was sent to prison for a term of years because he had attempted to commit suicide. Anything more cruel and absurd can hardly be imagined. A man suffering intense physical or mental agony, half crazed by his afflictions or misfortunes, recklessly attempts to take his own life. Timely interference saves him, and under the laws of New York he is tried and convicted of a felony, and is sent to the penitentiary. It is a senseless law. The man who has made up his mind to commit suicide is already punished. The thing to do is to send him to a hospital and get him in good shape again. Rest and medical attention will brace him up, and he will go out into the world a stronger and a better man. But this idiotic and barbarous law forces him to consort with criminals of the vilest class. and so degrades him that he is driven to self-murder, or transformed into a relentless and unscrupulous enemy of society.

If anything is gained by this persecution of the helpless and hopeless wretch who is tired of life we cannot see it. At last the newspapers have taken the matter up, and through their efforts it is probable that the disgraceful statute will soon be repealed.

Georgia, in common with her sister states, has occasionally had some unwise and extreme laws, but from the colonial period down to the present time she has never had a statute so flagrantly cruel and foolish as New York's suicide law. Governor Hill should pardon every person convicted of this offense, judges should suspend sentence, and the legislature should, at its next session, rethe law.

Woman Suffrage.

The movement in favor of woman suffrage seems to have died out altogether. The campaigners who organized it-Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucy Stone and Anna Dickinson-have been laid up for repairs, and there is no one to fill their places. The most remarkable fact about the movement is the failure of the women to vote in the instances where the privilege of suffrage was conferred on them. In Boston the women are allowed to vote on school questions. When the privilege was something of a novelty, a great many availed themselves of it, but it is now said that in terest in the matter has wholly died out.

But one reason can be given for the failare of the movement, namely, that the women themselves have no desire to vote. The agitators who were at the head of the movement represented nobody but themselves, and long before they deserted the platform they must have been convinced of that fact. The women do not want to vote, and this is an end of the matter. Their disposition seems to accord with the eternal fitness of things, but if it were otherwise-if they really desired to exercise the privilege of the ballot-there would be little or no opposition on the part of the men. When the women "take a notion in their heads." as we say in Georgia, the men are not likely to stand in the way of it. This is the record since Adam bit the apple.

WHAT MAKES nobody anybody? Ward Mc Allister, the celebrated amateur society scullion, says it is money.

THE DUST has at last been laid on the At

Mr. Mills's political programme for the emocratic party is goldbuggery and free trade. Whiskers Jones should at once proceed to whip western democrats into line.

WHEN YOU come to take a thoughtful view of the matter, isn't it just as probable that the republicans will carry Virginia and North Carolina as that the democrats will carry Massachusetts and Iowa in 1892?

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

EDWARD W. Bok says in a recent letter: "In a company of literary men a few evenings ago in New York, there was one of the most widely-known authors in this country, who is also a man of unusually good business judgment. He has made a careful study of the practical side of au-thorship, and the opinion of few men in the literary world today is so valuable on the earnings of the modern author, and so highly respected. He was talking on this topic, and he said: 'A writer of average ability in the literary world of today cannot hope to make his income exceed $2,500 per year, and to reach that amount even he must find a market for everything he writes. Of course, if he chances to strike upon a specialty peculiar to himself, oitheir in poetry, essay or fiction, and can hold the field long enough against imitators, he can do better, so far as his income is concerned. Out of this income of $2,500 a year, the average can do better, so far as his income is concerned.

Out of this income of $2,500 a year, the average writer is expected to do much. He must know people, he must meet them, he must be seen around. This is capital to him, but it also means capital. Going out calls for time, which, with the industrious author, is money. He Editors and publishers never like to have seedy-looking people around their establishments, except in the case of a rare genius. Your industrious author must read. It is good for him to be known as a buyer of books; he cannot always borrow or haunt the libraries. He must have books in his home for reference in his work, and—well, to be frank, for appearance sake, for appearances go far. All this means just a bare existence to the literary man of a $2,500 in a bare existence to the literary man of a $2,500 in-come. Of course, as he goes along far enough to have several books on the market, his royalty achave several books on the market, his royalty ac-count will help him somewhat, but unless he makes a better success of his book than do nine out of every ten writers nowadays, his royalty checks will hardly be perceptible. GENERAL GEORGIA GOSSIP.

Colonel Stone, of Jesup, has announced himsel as a candidate for congress in the eleventh dis-crict. Here is his platform: "That all notes o and and due bills shall be made legal tender, a accepted by the state and national governments in asyment of taxes, and that they shall be good for ny other indebtedness, and shall be redeemable n gold and silver bullion at the United State reasury." Colonel Stone has an idea that his plan is really "something better" than anything et suggested, and he proposes to fight it out or

The Athens Banner confidently says that Hon-William H. Fleming, of Augusta, will be speaker of the next house. The Banner is mapping out olitics in a lively manner.

Municipal politics are at white heat in Athens Neck and neck the candidates in the municipal campaign are coming around the last quarter pole and the homestretch is causing the spectators to rise to their feet with a great deal more excite-ment than was ever predicted by the oldest politi-cians in Athens. The Banner says:

cians in Athens. The Banner says:

"Nowlit is Brown; now it is Tuck; nobody knows who will run under the wire ahead. There is some excitement also in the several wards over the races for aldermen, but nearly all the interest is in the mayor's run. There are but few days remaining for the exciting work of campaigning to go on, but it will proceed with a vengeance in those few days. The registration books are closed. Now for the primary. As we have just said, it is utterly impossible to guess who will be mayor. Brown and Tuck are running well, and everybody says it is horse and horse."

Among the confederate relics exhibited by Mrs. J. Jefferson Thomas at the Augusta exhibition is a picture of General Robert E. Lee, a copy of the last picture he had taken, and one of Hon. Jefferson Thomas with an autograph letter from the expresident of the southern confederacy, returning thanks that his namesake was called for him the afternoon he passed through Augusta, a prisoner on his way to Fortress Munroe. A gong used by Hon. Alexander Stephens while vice president of the confederate states. A framed collection of pieces of battle flags used during the war; a leaf from the graves of Generals Lee and Stonewall Jackson; a piece of crape used at the funeral of

THE TWO PARTIES IN CONGRESS.

The republicans are going to be very lonely in the congress that meets two weeks from Of the 332 members of the house of repri sentatives there will be only about ninety-four republicans. Tom Reed is the only one of the republican leaders of the last house over. McKinley and Cannon, Reed's most able ssistants, will not be there. Neither wil Payson nor Mason, the two who came next in order. Burrows and Butterworth will likewise be missed. Indeed, of all the candidate speakership two years against Tom Reed, not one republica left in the house. The party in this house will not only be weak in numbers, but in ability. Tom Reed is the only one of the leaders left and the big Maine ex-tyrant will stand alone among the small band of republican brethren who weathered Reed's tail feathers are all pulled out and his comb is clipped, but that can't keep him down. He will be chief of his little band. Every man of them will be his slave, and them so Reed is going to give the democratic majority much trouble. He will throw every possible stumbling block in its way, and he will seek to annoy and entangle the speaker upon all occasions. He will help to throw out rope and will endeavor to give the great democratic majority enough to entangle itself in. Rather than attempt to hinit go on, in hopes that the democrats will pass measures that will give the republicans an issu to go to the country on in 1892. He want them to make some bad break like he made two years ago, and he believes, with the majority they have, such a thing is highly prob-

The republicans are going to be weak in the senate also. While not so weak as in the house, still they have lost two of their most prominent figures. Both Ingalls and Edmunds will be missed from the senate chamber. There will be no more iridescent oratory in the senate now, and no more tirades of abusive oratory as used to flow from the lips of the Vermonter after a protracted visit to his well-stocked committee

John Sherman and old Granny Hoar will be the only two of the prominent figures on the republican side remaining.

On the other hand, the democratic side been strengthened materially addition of Senator Hill, New York; Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, and Senator Palmer, of Illinois. The republican still have eight majority in the upper house, but the democratic side is the ablest, and in the debates that are to be this fact will b prominently brought out.

John Sherman is the only genuine statesn remaining on the republican side, while the democratic side is composed of more good men and better men than have sat upon that side of the chamber in many years. There are not less than nine great statesmen on the democratic side of the senate now, any one of whom is more than a match for the ablest republican senator. This fact will be prominently brought out when the new tariff bill comes up for debate in that body.

There has never been such a dignified po litical contest in this country as that now in progress for the speakership of the next house. In it there has been no abusive language. Indeed, not one of the candidates has even criticised an opponent. There has been button-holing of political schemes nor deals have been resorted to. Every candidate has deported himself with thorough dignity and onor and not one has the slightest degree of malice towards another. Whoever wins will have the friendship and thorough support of

A congressman at home is sometimes man. He can strut around with his tail feathers hoisted high at home, and the boys all look at him with envy. They point him out to strangers with pride and speak of him as our congressman.

But this same man is a very small potato in Washington. Congressmen are common there, and no one turns for a second glance, t matters not how they strut. The new men soon find this out.

And the ex-congressman is nothing. Judge Culberson, of Texas, sized these fellows up well the other day when asked by Congressman Gibson, of Maryland, if it would be lowering the dignity of an ex-member to become a candidate

His Duty.

Description of God Eloquently Expounded Yesterday.

Yesterday was such a rainy Sunday as Washington Irving describes.

As a consequence, the churches were not largely attended in the morning, and at night there was service in very few of them.

The ministers were in their pulpits, and expectationally able servers.

some exceptionally able sermor's preached.

Synopses of these are given below:
Dr. E. H. Barnett began a series of lectures lat night on the Pentateuch, or the first five books of the Bible. The initial lecture was on Moses, who Dr. Barnett pronounced one of the greatest characters in the world's history. Introducing the subject, Dr. Barnett mead Stephen's account of the leader of the Hebrews as narrated in the seventh chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. Stephen merely sketched the career of Moses, outlining his mother's hiding the infant in the rushes on the banks of the Nile, the finding of the child by the daughter of Rameses II, its education and subsequent theckered history.

checkered history.

Rameses II was a great ruler. Fortunately considerable is known of him. His face is as well known as Napoleon's. It is found carved all over Egypt. This Pharaoh had a large nose, a prominent forehead, and deep-set eyes. He was a man of eminent ability, but was Josephus tells us that Moses was a child of nusual beauty, and was remarkably precoci-lous. So handsome was he, that Josephus says growds would follow him to look at him. Rameses would have killed the child, had not the princess pleaded so earnestly for him.

The cause of Rameses's dislike was a declaration of the soothsayers that the young Moses would overthrow the Pharach and his line. Finally, Rameses ordered two braziers to be brought out, one filled with jewels and the other with live coals, and he announced that if the child reached for the jewels it should be killed, but if it reached for the coals its life would be spared. Moses indicated that he wanted the fire, and, childlike, picked up a glowing coal and put it in his mouth. Of course he was terribly burned, and Josephus says that caused Moses to stammer. Moses was highly educated. In those days the Egyptians were cultured, too. They had specialists in the arts and sciences, just as we have them.

When Moses had grown to be a man the Egyptians swarmed down on Egypt and pillaged city after city.

Moses was made general of the Egyptian army. He wanted to cross the wilderness and fall upon the invaders from behind. The wilderness, however, was filled with serpents. To get rid of them Moses had the sacred birds carried in advance of the army. The birds killed the snakes, the army marched through the wilderness, the Egyptians were introducted and driven back. Moses pursued, and coming to a city of theirs, besieged it. The queen, hearing how handsome the Egyptian general was, offered to surrender if he would marry her. Moses accepted the terms and in that way secured his negro wife, to whom the family of his subsequent fiance objected.

It was later that Moses quit the court and killed the Egyptian who was beating the two

First Baptist Church.

The rain did not act as a deterrent yesterday morning upon those who desired to hear Dr. J. B. Hawthorne's sermon on "The Law by Which Character Shall Be Known and Destiny Determined in the Judgment of the Great Day."

And those who braved the elements to hear this discourse were not disappointed. It was essentially deep, logical and brilliant, the eloquent preacher being at his best.

The sermon was built upon two oft-quoted exts—"Well done, thou good and thithful sersant. Thou hast been faithful over a law things. I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of the Lord." This is found in Matt. xxv, 21.

The second text, the antithesis of this, is found in the thirtieth verse of the same chapter: "Cast we the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

In this chapter there are three ppfables, but they illustrate the same subject. They set forth the principles or law which shall regulate the final judgment of the world. On that day those that have served God wisely and faithfully shall be rewarded with honor and happiness; but those who have been slothful, unprofitable and wicked shall be condemned and punished. No intelligent, moral being doubts that it is just to reward idelity, and to punish iddeness. This is a principle against which no human conscience has ever rebelled.

In this parable the servant rewarded by the rebelled.

In this parable the servant rewarded by the master had been truthful, active and careful. He had used his master's money so wisely and carefully that he was able to return double the amount which he had received.

The master, recognizing and appreciat ng his fidelity, said: "Well done, good and faith ful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things."

He that had received the one taient cime and said: "Lord, I knew thee, that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou had not sown, and gathering where thou had not strewn, and iwas afraid and went and hid thy talens in the earth."

slothful servant, thou ought to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at mycoming I should have received mine own with usury. Take, therefore, the talent from him and give it to him which hath ten talents, and cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

In that day men shall be rewarded, not for their success, but for their faithfulness.

But I admonish you not to misuse this comforting truth. While it is true that it is not success, but faithfulness that God will reward, it is also true that faithful labor in God's service is never supproductive.

There are dear, good women who sit up I alf the night to write odes to posterity, which p sterity will never see.

That a man may make an honest effort to be a statesman and fail, is proposition which the last deorgia legislature has settled finally and forever. But no man ever failed in an honest effort to enter God's kingdom and be saved.

"Ask and ye shall receive."

"Seek and ye shall find."

"Knock and it shall be opened unto you."

There is not a possibility of failure in this undertaking.

Any man who wants Christ's salvation can have it immediately, if he will seek it and accept it on Christ's terms.

No regenerate, forgiven, saved man ever made an honest effort to develop his spiritual life, and failed.

an independent of Christian work Fidelity in any department of Christian work succeeds.

In God's kingdom every honest effort tells. In that field no honest labor is lost. If we plant and cultivate, God will give the increase.

The unprofitable servant was sent out into outer darkness for what he had neglected to do. He had doubtless done many wicked things, but here he is condemned simply for the wickedness of his idleness. He had neglected to put his lord's money to the exchangers. Here we see the final execution of a law which Christ announced in the dramatic act of cursing the barren fig tree.

"This is the law. Whatsoever is unprofitable must perish."

"This is the law. Whatsoever is unprofitable must perish:"

The question then for each one of us to put to himself is, what am 1? Am 1 a faithful servant of the Lord, or am I an idler in the great field where men are called to use their talents for the glory of God?

You may be the busiest of men in secular pursuits, but if you are not in God's service, if you are not planning, praying tolling and sacrificing for the advancement of His truth and kingdom, you are an idler, an unprofitable servant, whose reward shall be an eternal heritage of shame, darkness and despair.

There was no service last night.

The congregation was made up largely of men, who listened to not only fine music but to a fine sermon by Dr. Tupper on "The Service of God Not the Impulse of Self Interest."

"Dost Job serve God for naught," Job 1, 9.
"Satan with effrontery predicts the blasphemy and renunciation of the patriarch when reduced from the height of opulence to the utmost misery—that his seeming piety is the prompting or enlightened self interest implying that obedience was not a disinterested service but a selfish policy. But the falsehood of this prosecution recoiled upon himself. Job's piety was not self-interest, but the service of God. The book of Job is indicative of the earliest dispensation, showing God's moral government of the world not to be inactive, but always operative; that the ultimate result of a good man's affliction is happiness. In the New Testament, however, they have more of a spiritural cast; they design to draw men closer to God, as their service of Him reaches out in lasting benefits to others as in the case of St. Paul dying in prison after thirty-three years' service and in poverty of wealth, of honor, of friends, of power, yet living a deathless hero on the page of history and in the lasting gratitude of the church of God, for what he more than any other man has done for it.

"The Christian does not follow the Divine Maste for the loaves and fishes, or for position or fame. "The sincerity of faith leads him to serve his Lord not for his own self-interest but for the glory of God.

"Let nothing disconcert you in your service of God, but so feed your minds with lofty thoughts that neither evil tongues, rash judgments, nor the success of selfish men, nor greetings where no kindness is, nor all the dreary intercourse of daily life, nor all the suffering that must be yours, could ever prevail against you, or disturb your cheerful faith. Then all which you behold is full of blessing."

The First, Methodist.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather yesterday morning, a large congregation attended services in the First Methodiat church with the expectation of hearing a sermon from the Rev. Sam P. Jones. Dr. W. D. Anderson, the pastor, announcee that Mr. Jones had not arrived in the city. This statement disappointed some, but that disappointment was only momentary. Dr. Anderson pronounced an extemporaneous discourse which held the exclusive attention of his hearers for nearly an hour. His sermon was a generalization of the basic principles of the Christian religion, and his chief purpose was to fasten upon professing Christians a realization of their daily and hourly responsibility. Each member of the church, no matter how humble he may be, is in some sense an exponent of Methodism, and his walk and conversation are living arguments in the hands of the opponents of Christianity. Dr. Anderson spoke fluently and impressively, and his sermon went home to the hearts of his hearers.

Owing to the rain there was no service last night.

Church of Our Father.

Church of Our Father.

Church of Our Father.

The Rey. William Roswell Cole, D.D., pastor of the Unitarian church, repeated a discourse of power yesterday morning.

The subject was "An Apprehended Purpose," and the text was, Luke XVIII, 31: "Then Jesus took unto Him the twelve and said unto them, beloved, we go up to Jerusalem."

"In these words we have the purpose of Jesus' life. The world never saw such a persistent purpose as set forth in the life of Jesus—no turning aside, no shrinking from the trials and dangers along His life's journey. So when we learn the character of Jesus and His circumstances we are not surprised that He reached the Jerulasem of His purpose. We would have been surprised if He had turned back when the cross offered itself. So every man's life, to be strong and real, should have an apprehended purpose to which it is journeying. It may be your profession, your business, your desire, to put some one else in heaven besides yourself. And the only way I can help you is, that you should find out what your character is, and secondly, under what circumstances or environment you live that; s, that you live in this nineteenth cen-find out what your character is, and secondly, under what circumstances or environment you live; that is, that you live in this nineteenth century with all its peculiar demands and claims upon you. A life without an apprehended purpose is stagnant, meaningless and drifting. "What is the power which comes from an apprehended purpose? There is no tarrying, no lottering on the journey of life. It concentrates all our intensest life's work into our one purpose. Thus it is the power which comes from strength and consecration. It is an intensifying power, which makes suffering and pain and trials enser to bear, because the vision of our purpose draws us on. Thus when we know a man's character and his circumstances, nothing is wonderful which he does. Man's possibilities have only been indicated in Christ. So no apprehended purpose is too hard for him to accomplish, through whatever trials and sufferings it may lead."

The Central Presbyterian.

The Central Presbyterian church yesterday morning, considering the inclement weather. His discourse was upon what good Christians may do simply by leading exemplary lives. The words of Dr. Strictler's text were, "Occupy till I come," from St. Luke, XIX, 13.

In opening his sermon the pastor undertook to point out some of the ways in which a Christian may be useful. "He may do much good by maintaining a good character and living as Christians should. It is vain for a Christian to try to do good without being good himself. It is also vain for him to undertake to exert a voluntary and conscious influence upon other men unless he is constantly exerting an influence of which he himself is unconscious. This doing good by being good is very much overlooked and yet it is an essential. Every Christian may do great good by prayer. Prayer is a great power, not because of any efficacy inherent in it of itself, but because of God's promise. When we pray for blessings, God pledges Himself to hear us and to do what we ask Him to do. He pledges all the infinite attributes of His nature. Thus prayer has, in one sense, all the power of God. Dr. Strickler went on to show that the scriptures are full of illustrations of the power and efficacy of prayer. The Savior said that where two or three are gathered together in prayer they shall be heard. When His disciples prayed with one accord on the occasion of the resurrection 3,000 were converted in a day. The gospel and the history of the church are full of instances showing the power of united prayer.

"By good gifts Christians may do good. Their gifts may be small and the resultant good large. All the doilolars in the treasury of the Lord are not of the same size. Everything depends upon the care, faith and supreme affection of the supplicant.

"Ag gift made in the right way and spirit is an investment. It is like so much stock taken in an enterprise whose general manager, the Lord Jesus, does not squan

A DISCUSSION OF PROFESSIONAL ETHICS

The Cause—A Series of Newspaper Cards Between the Two Gentlemen Causes Trouble.

Dr. W. P. Nicolson, dean of the Southern college, and Dr. Julian P. Thomas, formerly a member of the faculty of the college, engaged in a rough and tumble fisticuff vester

The fight occurred in front of Chamberlin Johnson's building about 6 o'clock, and was brought about by a newspaper dis-cussion by the two physicians over professional

Here is the history of the trouble and de tails of the fight: About one year ago Dr. Julian P. Thoma formerly of Augusta, came to Atlanta from New York to practice as specialist on skin diseases and cancer. He had been associated with eminent specialists in New York. Shortly after opening an office here Dr. Thomas was engaged by the faculty of the Southern Medical college to deliver a course of special heavy as this disease.

of special lectures on skin diseases. About two or three weeks ago Dr. Thomas inserted a card in the city papers advertising his business as a specialist in the treatment of skin diseases and cancer. That advertisement was considered by the other members of the Southern Medical colege faculty as a violation of the laws of ethics. And Dr. Thomas's lectures ceased. The story of the doctor's separation from the was expelled. On Tuesday, after the advertisement appeared on Sunday, Dr. Thomas was to deliver lecture before the students of the college. But before the hour for the lecture arrived, Dr. Thomas heard mutterings of displeasure, caused by his advertisement, and instead of going to the college, so he says, called on the dean, Dr. Nicolson, about 8:30 o'clock, and voluntarily verbally tendered his resignation.

Dr. Nicolson had on Monday evening previous to this posted a letter to Dr. Thomas, requesting him to discontinue his lectures until the faculty could meet and take some action on his violation of the ethics governing the ion and its colleges and societies, by virtue of the published advertisement. This letter Dr. Thomas says he had not re-ceived when he called on Dr. Nicolson, but found it in his morning's mail when he returned to his office. Following this, Dr. Thomas, in an interview, said that he had tendered his resignation to the faculty of the college voluntarily, because he knew that according to the ethics he would either have to withdraw from the college faculty or take his card out of the newspapers In the interview he defended his action in placing his card in the papers by citing instances where some of the most eminent practitioners in all the large cities advertise.

Dr. Nicolson replied to this interview in a ard in THE CONSTITUTION, in which he stated that Dr. Thomas had not resigned, but had been discharged from his connection with the Southern Medical college. Dr. Nicolson's card also stated that Dr. Thomas had never been a professor in the college, but had simply been engaged to deliver a special course of lectures, and that Dr. Thomas had violated professional ethics in a manner that no physician of merit would be guilty of. Dr. Thomas replied to this card in Sunday's Constitution, and denounced some of Dr. Nicolson's statements as false. He insisted that he had tendered his resignation, and was not discharged. He stated that he never claimed to be a professor in the college, but and appeared as such in the college's catalogue. This card was the direct cause of the fight. Dr. Nicolson was offended and made up his mind to resent the allegations made in the card. About 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon the police on Whitehall street were attracted by a fight in front of Chamberlin & Johnson's

The antagonists were separated and were found to be Dr. Thomas and Dr. Nicolso Both men were bleeding and were muddy nd looked decidedly dilapidated.

They were arrested and escorted to the staise and placed under bond. Dr. Nicolson's face was pretty badly scratched and bruised and he had a painful bruise on his head. Dr. Thomas had a bruise on the head inflicted by a blow from his antagonist. There is a decided difference of opin gentlemen claiming that the other started the Dr. Nicolson's Statement. Dr. Nicolson, when asked for his reason of the affair, said:

"When I read Dr. Thomas's card in today's Constitution, I concluded that I could do nothing but resent it. It denounced me as a liar, and as I did not feel just like swallowing that, I called at Dr. Thomas's office to de-mand a retraction of his statements. I did not find him in. I called again about 12 o'clock, taking with me Dr. Grandy, my assistant, but was informed by his father that he had not returned. His father asked me to leave my name. I told him that was not necessary, as I would call again. I waited near his office for him, as I had been informed that his bedroom, as well as his office, was in the Chamberlain building.
"I was standing in the stairway entrance when Dr. Stoney, who was with me on my last visit, and was standing out on the sid walk, remarked:

". 'There comes Dr. Thomas now. "I immediately stepped out on the sidewalk, right under the electric light. As I stepped out, without a word Dr. Thomas raised his cane and struck me. I warded off the blo with my arm. I strack him over the head with my arm. I struck him over the head with my cane. We then clinched and fell to the sidewalk, I falling on top. I had thrown down my cane and was striking Thomas with my fist. He still held his cane and was pounding me on the head with it. We were separated and carried to the station house.

"I informed both Dr. Stoney and Dr. Grandy of what I was going to do, and that I wanted them to go along to see fair play, as I was not armed. They were distinctly told that they were to have nothing to do with the difficulty unless Thomas attempted to shoot." Dr. Thomas's Statement.

Dr. Thomas states most positively that Dr. Nicolson struck the first blow, and presents this card for publication:

this card for publication:

"Last evening in going to my room in the Chamberlin & Johnson building, as I stepped into the passageway to go upstairs, I was, without a word of warning, struck over the head with a stick by Dr. Nicolson, hiding in the dark, who sprang upon me. I returned the blow with my stick (having positively refused to arm myself with pistol or knife although advised to do so by friends) and with a few well-directed blows reduced my ethical friend to a state of 'innocuous desuetude.' Just as I was getting interested in pounding my view of professional ethics into the learned dean with the 'elegant offices,' unfortunately for me, a policeman insisted upon my getting off of him and letting 'ethics' up.

At an interesting stage of the proceedings I was pulled off Dr. Nicolson by one or two friends, who were with him, I presume, to see fair play between us.

"I am still at the old stand, and as my specialty is to treat the affiicted, will be pleased to prescribe for my ethical friend's bruises and as successfully, I hope, as I administered ethics last evening.

"Which is the more unprofessional, to advertise in the daily papers over your own signature, or to waylay a man in the dark, strike him with a club and get licked for your pains?"

They had a good house, and never played to better advantage.

It was Sunday—the holy day of God—but that went for nothing. Two more ardent campaign speeches were never made.

A well-filled house faced the speakers, and cheered them frequently and loudly.

It was a pretty scene, that which rested on the back of the stage. Painted in all the glowing colors of forest, field and sun and sky, with all the cunning of an artist's hand, it suggested strongly a stage drama. Then the footlights flared upon the scene, and theatergoers involuntarily looked for the orchestra.

It has started out admirably, and the members are full of enthusiasm.

Mr. Hirsch requests all his musical friends to call upon Mr. Simpson and enroll their names as members of the club.

Most of the leading singers of Atlanta will take part in the performance. Some forty or fifty of the prettiest and brightest society young ladies of the city will sing in the choruses. They will wear beautiful costumes, made specially for the occasion.

Mr. Hirsch says he confidently expects to raise $2,500 or $3,000 by the three performances for the Grady hospital.

A NEW MOVE.

A Brush as Well as a Shine for Five Cents.

The bootblacks of Atlanta have made a new departure. They have branched out.

Every bootblack in the city has provided himself with a whisk-broom in addition to the other articles used in his shining occupation, and advertise from placards posted on their person that they will give a shine and a clothes brush for 5 cents.

The scheme is a new, but very popular one, with the customers of the shine artists.

It was started by a suggestion of Mr. C. G. Nunn, the minstrel man, who brought the matter before the boys.

There is talk of organizing a bootblacks' union, and it has met with considerable favor among the shining lights of that profession.

A REFORM CLUB.

The Greatest Humanitarian and Social Reform Movement of the Century

JUST BEING ORGANIZED IN NEW YORK.

It Is Headed by Some of the Leading Men of the Met opolis-"Away with the Slum;" Is the Warcry.

The greatest teform movement of the century has just been placed on foot in New York

The movement is headed by the leading men of New York city, irrespective of creed or class, and is backed by the wealth and power of the great metropolis.

It is a movement for the purpose of wiping out the slums of the great city, and reforming the lower class of people. New York is a great center of vice and misery, of poverty and privation, and of sin in all its direct forms.

It is the high purpose of the leaders of the humanitarian and reform movement to change this condition of affairs, and to make moral centers of the slums. The hardened gutter rats will be taken up while young and are at the heat of the movement and the pas-tors of all the thurches, no matter what their creeds may be, are heart and soul with the great movement.

It promises here for the real reform and betterment of the moral condition of New York than an other movement ever started.

The enthusiastic gentlemen behind it believe that the plan under which they have started to work is the plan by which the city of

Read what Richard Watson Gilder, editor of The Century magazine, distinguished literateur and intimate friend of ex-President Cleveland and one of the leaders of the movement, says of it:

"I do not care to make predictions as to the immediate result of the present movement, but it has the undeniable importance of a conspicuous sign of the times. You ask whether it will have any influence in politics? I hope so. If you improve the moral condition of a city you improve mong other things its politics, and I have heard even some of our leading working local politicians belonging to both parties confess, in the confidence of the social circle, that there are points in the politics of our city that might be improved from the skircly moral point of view. One of my own special objects in joining the movement is to help bring the kindergarten cause more closely to the attention of our people. New York is lamentably behind Boston, Philadelphia and many lesser cities in this matter. If we want to make good citizens we must catch them young." "I do not care to make predictions as to the

Mr. Gilder is one of the most enthusiastic Mr. Gilder is one of the most enthusiastic members of the great work.

One of the prime objects of the movement is to provide more and better parks and playgrounds for the children—parks adequate to furnish amusement and diversion for all the children of the slums and tenement houses. It is believed that when this is done, vice and crime among this class will be greatly lessened. They go on the idea that plenty of good, fresh air from the pines and mountain tops exercises a good moral influence—a kind of moral atmosphere, as it were.

But the time of year when parks and playgrounds and pure, fresh air can be dispensed with, even by the children of the slums, is at with, even by the children of the slums, is at hand. The matter of getting coal for warmth and for cooking the scant meal is a paramount one just now. This reform club will look after things of this kind and will supply those who are out of a job with some kind of employment. Those shivering with cold, and whose vitals are gnawing with hunger, will be helped in a substantial way if they deserve aid. It has been suggested by an Episcopal of argyman who is deeply interested in the movement that when an honist man wants bread he is willing to work for it, and that it would be a good idea to establish public woodpiles where it ose who want bread can go and saw wood, if they have no other employment. It is further suggested that sewing rooms, for a similar purpose, be established for ladies.

zeal and energy.

The World has especially worked up the movement, and to that excellent paper the success so far attained by the club is largely due. It has devoted pages at a time to the great work, and has given it a wide prominence and great orestige.

Every day the columns of The World are filled with accounts of the progress of the movement, and offering valuable suggestions for it in the future.

"An attempt is being made to unite the moral forces of New York city and vicinity for concerted effort in carrying through such reform measures for the benefit of the poor as can be agreed upon.

"The first practical reform to be taken up will be the establishment of parks and play-grounds for children. When the city is thoroughly aroused as to the great need for more air and sunshine for the young, other evils will be attacked and posilive measures advocated.

"The plan for the viniter is to have weekly mass-meetings, each to be held in a different church or synagogue and addressed by several well-known speaker.

"It is certain that these meetings will be reported in full by the great and progressive daily papers, and more than fifty ministers have already series of the committee on organization that the new movement be the sabject of discourse in as many churches and synagogues as possible. Where other subjects have already been chosen for both morning and evening addresses, a few words are requested upon the subject in the form of an anouncement.

THE ACROPOLIS

The Subject of an Eloquent Sermon by Dr. Talmage.

WONDERFUL WORK OF ANCIENT TIMES.

The Building in Which the thenians Boasted-Once a Temple of M rble, but Now Ruins.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., November 27 - [Sperital.]—The congregation at the tabe-macle.led by cornet and organ, sang this morning, with great power, the hymn of Isaac Watts, beginning:
Our God, our help in ages pass.

Our hope for years to come.

The sermon, which was on the Atropolis, is the sixth of the series Dr. Talmage is preaching on the subjects suggested by his tour in Bible lands. His text was taken from Acts ens, his spirit was stirred in him, when he saw the city wholly given to idolatry."

It seemed as if morning would never come. We had arrived after dark in Athens, Greece, and the night was sleepless with expectation, and my watch slowly announced to me 1 and 2 and 3 and 4 o'clock; and at the first ray of dawn, I called our party to look out of the window upon the city to which Paul said he was a debtor, and to which the whole earth is debtor for Greek architecture, Greek sculpture, Greek provess and Greek history. That morning in Athens we sauntered forth armed with most generous and lovely letters from the president of the United States and his secretary of state, and during all our stay in the city those letters caused every door and every gate and every temple and every palace to iwing open before us. The mightiest geogra hical name on earth today is America. The ignature of an American president and secretary of state will take a man where an army could not. Those names brought us into the presence of a most gracious and beautiful so greign, the queen of Greece, and her cordiality was more like that of a sister than the occupant of a throne-room. No formal bow, as when monarchs are approached, but a cordial shake of the hand and earnest questions about our personal welfare and our beloved country far away. But this morning we pass through where stood the Agora, the ancient market place, the locality where philosophers used to meet their disciples, walking while they talked, and where Paul, the Christian logician, flung many a proud Stoic and got the laugh on manyan impertinent Epicurean. The market place was the center of social and political life, and it was the place where people went to tell and hear the news. Booths and bazaars were set up for merchandise of all kinds, except meat, but everything must be sold for cash, and there must be no lying about the value of commodities, and the agoranomi who It seemed as if morning would never come. We had arrived after dark in Athens, Greece, were setup for merchandise of all kinds, except meat, but everything must be sold for cash, and there must be no lying about the value of commodities, and the agoranomi who ruled the place could inflict severe punishment upon offenders. The different schools of thinkers had distinct places set apart for convocation. The Plateans must meet at the cheese market, the Decelians at the barber thinkers had distinct places set apart for convocation. The Plateans must meet at the cheese market, the Decelians at the barber shep, the sellers of perfumes at the fankincense headquarters. The market blace was a place 350 yards long and 250 wide, and it was given up to gossip and merchaidise, and lounging and philosophizing. Alt this you need to know in order to understand the Bible when it says of Paul, "Therefore disjusted he in the market daily with them that mit him." You see it was the best iplace to go; an audience, and if a man feels himself called to preach he wants people to preach to. But before we make our chiefvisits of today we must take a turn at the stadium. It is a little way out, but go we must. The stadium was the place where the foot reces occurred. Paul had been out here no doubt for he frequently uses the scenes of that place if figures when he tells us: "Let us run the race that is set before us," and again. "They do it to obtain a corruptible garland, but we are incorruptible." The marble and the gilding have been removed, but the high mounds against which the seats were piled are still there. The stadium is 680 feet long, 130 wide, and held 40,000 spectators. There is today the very tunnel through which the defeated racer departed from the istadium and from the hisses of the people, and there are the stairs up which the victor went to the top of the hill to be crowned with the laurel. In this place contests with wild beasts sometimes took place, and while Hadrian, the emperor, sat on yonder height, 1,000 beasts were slain in one celebration. But it was chiefly for foot racing, and so I proposed to my friend that day, while we were in the stadium, that we try which of us could run the sooner from end to end of this historical ground, and at the word given by the lookers-on we started side by side, but before I got through I found out what Paul meant when he compares the spiritual race with the race in this very stadium, as he says: "Lay aside every weight." My heavy overcoat and my fri freedom from such encumbrance showed the advantage, in any kind of a race, of "laying aside every weight."

We come now to the Acropolis. It is a rock about two miles in circumference at the base We come now to the Acropolis. It is a rock about two miles in circumference at the base and a thousand feet in circumference at the top, and 300 feet high. On it has been crowded more elaborate architecture and sculpture than in any other place under the whole heavens. Originally a fortress, afterward a congregation of temples and statues and pillars, their rains an enchantment from which no observer sere breaks away. No wonder that Aristides thought it the the center of all things—Greece, the center of the world; Attica, the center of Greece; Athens, the center of Attics, and the Acropolis the center of Athens. Earthquakes have shaken it; Verres plundered it. Lord Elgin, the English ambassador at Constantinople, got permission of the sultan to remove from the Acropolis fallen pieces of the bailding, but he took from the building to England the finest statues, removing them at an expense of eight hundred thousand dollars. A storm overthrew many of the statues of the Acropolis. Morosini, the teneral, attempted to remove from a pedium the sculptured car and horses of Victory, but the clumsy machinery dropped it, and all was lost. The Turks turned the building; into a powder marszine where the Venetial guns dropped a fire that by explosion sent the columns flying in the air and falling tracked and spintered. But after all that title and storm and war and iconcelasm have effected, the Acropolis is the monarch of all ruins, and before it bow the learning, the genius, the poetry, the art, the history of the ages. I saw it as it was thousands of years ago. I had read so much about it, that I beeded no magician's wand to restore it. At one wave of my hand on that clear morning in 1889, it rose before me in the glory it had when Pericles ordered it, and Ictinus planned it, and Phidias chiseled it, and Protogines painted it, and Pausanias described it. Its gates, which were carefully guarded by the ancients, open to let you in, and you ascend by sixty marble steps the propylea, which Epaminondas wanted to transfer to The statues of the deities Dienysius, Prometheus, Hermes, Demeter, Zons., Hern., Poseidon; income frieze tweive divinities; centaurs in battle, weaponry from Marathon, charlot of night, charlot of the moraling, horses of the sun, the fates, the furies; statue of Julier holding in his right hand the tunderboil; silver-footed chair in which Xerxee watched the battle of Salamis only a few miles away. Here is the colossal statue of Minerva in full armor, eyes of gray colored stone, figure of a Sphinx on her head, griffins by her side (which are lions with eagle's beak), spear in one hand, statue of liberty in the other, a shield carved with battle scenes, and even the slippers sculptured and tied on with thongs of gold. Far out at sea the sallors saw this statue of Minerva Ising high above all the temples, glittering in the sun. Here are statues of equestrians, statue of a lioness, and there are the Graces, and yonder a horse in bronze. There is a statue said in the time of Augustus to have of its own accord turned around from east to west and spit blood; statues made out of shields conquered in battle; statue of Apollo, the expeller of locusts; statue of Apollo, the expeller of locusts; statue of Anarceon, drunk and singing; statute of Olympodorus, a Greek, memorrable for the fact that he was cheerful when others were cast down, a trait worthy of sculpture. But, walk on and around the Acropolis; yonder you see a statue of Hygeia, and the statue of Thesens fighting the Minetaur, and the statue of the countries slaying serpents. No wonder that Petronius said it was easier to find a god than a man in Athens. Oh, the Acropolis The most of its temples and statues made from the marble quarries of Mount Pentellcum, a little way from the city. I have here on my table a block of the Parthenon made out of this marble, and on it is the sculpture of Phildias. I brought it from the Acropolis. This specimen has on it when the statue of the delicate luster of the Acropolis to the delicate luster of the Acropolis in the morning light called a fanatic, and others called a mad cap, and others a blasphemer, and others styled contemptuously, "this fellow." Paul arrived in answer to the writ of invitation and confronted them and gave them the biggest dose that mortals ever took. He was so built that nothing could scare him, and as for Jupiter and Athenia, the god and the goddess, whose images were in full sight on the adjoining hill, he had not so much regard for them as he had for the ant that was crawling in the sand under his feet. In that audience were the first orators of the world, and they had voices like flutes when they were passive and like under his feet. In that audience were the first orators of the world, and they had voices like flutes when they were passive and like trumpets when they were passive and like trumpets when they were aroused, and I think they laughed in the sleeves of their gowns as this insignificant-looking man rose to speak. In that audience were scholiasts, who knew everything, or thought they did, and from the end of the longest hair on the top of their craniums to the end of the nail on the longest toe, they were stuffed with hypercriticism and they leaned back with a superclivous look to listen. As in 1889, I stood on that rock where Paul stood, and a slab of which I brought from Athens by consent of the queen, through Mr. Tricoupis, the prime minister, and had placed in yonder memorial wall, I read the whole story, Bible in hand.

What I have so far said in this discourse was necessary in order that you may understand the boldness, the defiance, the holy recklessness, the magnificence of Paul's speech. The first thunderbolt he launched at the opposite hill—the Acropolis—that moment all a-glitter with idols and temples. He cries out, "God who made the world." Why, they thought that Prometheus made it, that Mercury made it, that Apollo made it, that Fros made it, that Pandrocus made it, that Eros made it, that Pandrocus made it, that Eros made it, that Pandrocus made it, that Boreas made it, that Pandrocus made it, that Boreas made it, that took all the gods of the Parthenon, yea, all the gods and goddesses of the Acropolis to make it, and here stands a man without any ecclesiastical title, neither a D.D., nor even a reverend, declaring that the world was made by the Lord of heaven and earth, and hence the interference that all the splendid even a reverend, declaring that the world was made by the Lord of heaven and earth, and hence the interference that all the splendid covering of the Acropolis, so near that the people standing on the steps of the Parthenon could hear it, was a deceit, a falsehood, a sham, a blaspheny. Look at the faces of his auditors; they are turning pale, and then red, and then wrathful. There had been several earthquakes in that region; but that was the severest shock these men ever felt. The Persians had bombarded the Acropolis from the heights of Mars hill, but this Pauline bombardment was greater and more terrific.

sians had bombarded the Acropolis from the heights of Mars hill, but this Pauline bombardment was greater and more terrific. "What," said his hearers, "have we been hauling with many yokes of oxen for centuries those-blocks from the quarries of Mount Pentelicum, and have we had our architects putting up these structures of unparalleled splendor, and have we had the greatest of all sculptors, Phidias, with his men, chiseling away at those wondrous pediments, and cutting away at these friezes, and have we taxed the nation's resources to the utmost, now to be told that those statues see nothing, hear nothing, know nothing?" Oh, Paul, stop for a moment and give these started and overwhelmed auditors time to catch their breath! Make a rhetorical pause! Take a look around you at the interesting landscape, and give your hearers time to recover! No, he does not make even a period, or so much as a colon or semicolon, but launches the second thunderbolt right after the first, and in the same breath goes on to say: "God dwelleth not in temples made with hands." Oh, Paul! Is not make even a period, or so much as a coion or semicolon, but launches the second thunder-bolt right after the first, and in the same breath goes on to say: "God dwelleth not in temples made with hands." Oh, Paul! Is not deity more in the Parthenon, or more in the Theseum, or more in the Erechtselium, or more in the temple of Zeus Olympius than in the open air, more than on the hill where we are sitting, more than on Mount Hynettus out yonder, from which the bees get their honey. "No more," responds Paul, "He dwelleth not in temples made with hands." But surely the preacher on the pulpit of rock on Mars thill will stop now. His audience can endure no more. Two thunderbolts are enough. No, in the same breath he launches the third thunderbolt, which, to them, is more fiery, more terrible, more demolishing than the others, as he cries out, "hath made of one blood all nations." Oh, Paul! you forget you are speaking to the proudest and most exclusive audience in the world. Do not say "of one blood." You cannot mean that. Had Socrates, and Plato, and Demosthenes, and Solon, and Lycurgus, and Draco, and Sophocles, and Euripedes, and Eschylus, and Pericles, and Ruripedes, and Eschylus, and Pericles, and Phidias, and Militiades, blood just like the Persians, like the Turks, like the Egyptians, like the common herd of humanity? "Yes," says Paul, "of one blood, all nations."

Surely that must be the closing paragraph of the sermon. His auditors must be let up from the nervous strain. Paul has smashed the Acropolis and smashed the national pride of the Greeks, and what more can he say? Those Greejan orators, standing on that place, always closed their addresses with something sublime and climateric, a peroration, and Paul is going to give them a peroration which will eclipse in power and majesty all that he has yet said. Heretofore he has based one thunderbolt at a time; now, he will close by hurling two at once. The little, old man, under the power of his speech, has straightened himself up, and the stoop has gone out of his shoulders, and he looks about three feet taller than when he began, and his eyes, which were quiet, became two flames of fire, and his face, which was caim in the introduction, now depicts a whirlwind of emotion as he ties the two thunderbolts together with a cord of inconsumable courage and hurls them at the crowd now standing or sitting aghast—the two thunderbolts of resurrection and last judgment. His closing words were: "Because He hath appointed a day, in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom He hath ordained; whereof He hath given assurance unto all men in that He hath judge the world in righteousness by that—man whom He hath ordained; whereof He hath raised him from the dead."

Remember those thoughts were to them novel and provocative; that Christ, the despised Nazarene, would come to be their judge, and they should have to get up out of their cemeteries to stand before Him and take their eternal doom. Mightiest burst of elecutionary power ever heard. The ancestors of some of those Greeks had heard Demosthenes in his oration on the crown, had heard Æschines in his speeches against Timarchus and Ctesiphon, had heard Plato in his great argument for immortality of the soul, had heard Scorates on his death-ded, suicidal cup of hemloch in hand, leave his hearers in emotion too great to bear, had in the theater of Dionysius at the foot of the Acropolis (the ruin of its piled-up amphitheater and the marble floor of its orchestra still there) seen enacted the tragedies of Æschylus and Sophocles, but neither had the ancestors of these Grecians on Mars hill, or thenyselves, ever heard or witnessed such tragedies of transduction with such the still problems. the ancestors of these Grecians on Mars hill, or the uses of moral power as that with which Paul now whelmed his hearers. At those two thoughts of resurrection and judgment, the audience sprang to their feet. Some moved they adjourn to some other day to hear more on the same theme, but others would have torn the sacred orator to pieces. The record says, "Some mocked." I suppose it means that they mimicked the solemnity of his voice, that they took off his impassioned gesticulation, and they cried out: "Jew! Jew! Where dld you study thetoric? You ought to hear our orators speak! You had better go back to your business of tent making. Our Lycurgus knew more in a minute than you will know in a month. Say, where did you get that crooked back, and those week aver from? Hell had. You the minute than you will know in a month. Say, where did you get that crooked back, and those weak eyes from? Ha! ha! -You try to teach us Grecians! What nonsense you talk about when you speak of resurrection and judgment. Now, little old man, climb down the side of Mars hill and get out of sight as soon as possible." "Some mocked." But, that seeme adjourned to the day of which the record exten had record. sacred orator had spoken—the day of resurrecthat seene adjourned to the day of which the sacred orator had spoken—the day of resurrection and judgment.

As in Athens, that evening in 1889, we climbed down the pile of slippery rocks, where all this had occurred, on our way back to our hotel, I stood half way between the Acropolis and Mars hill in the gathering shadows of eventide. I seemed to hear those two hills in sublime, and awful converse. "I am chiefly of the past," said the Acropolis. "I am chiefly of the future," replied Mars hill. The Acropolis said: "My orators are dead. My law-givers are dead. My poets are dead. My poets are dead. My such poets are dead. My architects are dead. My sculptors are dead. I am a monument of the dead past. I shall never again hear a song sung. I will never again behold a goddess crowned." Mars hill responded: "I, too, have had a history. I had on my heights warriors who will never again unsheath the sword, and judges who will never again uter a doom, and orators who will never again make a plea. But my influence is to be more in the future than it ever was in the past. The words that missionary, Paul, uttered that exciting day in the hearing of the wisest men and the populace on my rocky shoulders, have only begun their majestic roll; the brotherhood of man, and the Christ of God, and the peroration of resurrection and last judgment with which the Tarsian orator closed his sermon that day amid the mocking crowd, shall yet revolutionize the planet. Oh, Acropolis! I have stood resurrection and last judgment with which the Tarsian orator closed his sermon that day amid the mocking crowd, shall yet revolutionize the planet. Oh, Acropolis! I have stood here long enough to witness that your gods are no gods at all. Your Boreas could not control the winds. Your Neptune could not manage the sea. Your Apollo never evoked a musical note. Your god Ceres never grew a harvest. Your goddess of wisdom, Minerva, never knew the Greek alphabet. Your Jupiter could not handle the lightnings. But the God whom I proclaimed on the day when Paul preached before the astounded assemblage on my rough heights, is the God of music, the God of wisdom, the God of of week, the God of storms, the God of sunshines, the God of the land, and the God of the sea, the God over all, blessed forever." Then, the Acropolis spake and said, as though in self-defense: "My Plato argued for the immortality of the soul, and my Socrates varied withing and my Militides at Marsthon Then, the Acropolis spake and said, as though in self-defense: "My Plate argued for the immortality of the soul, and my Socrates praised virtue, and my Militades at Marathon drove back the Persian oppressors." "Yes," said Mars hill, "your Plato laboriously guessed at the immortality of the soul, but my Paul, divinely inspired, declared it as a fact straight from God. Your Socrates praised virtue but can reduce a suicide. Your Militia. straight from God. Your Socrates praised virtue but expired as a suicide. Your Miltiades was brave against earthly foes, yet died from a wound ignominously gotten in after-defeat. But my Paul challenged allearth and ail hell with this battle-shout: 'We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities organize the required the relations. not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places, and then on the 29th of June, in the year 66, on the road to Ostia, after the sword of the headsman had given one keen stroke, took the crown of martyrdom."

Atter a more translations by both hills the martyrdom."

After a moment's silence by both hills, the Acropolis moaned out in the darkness: "Alas! Alas!" and Mars hill responded: "Hosannah! Hosannah!" Then the voices of both hills became indistinct, and as I passed on and away in the twilight, I seemed to hear only two sounds—a Ifragment of Pentelicon workle from the architexy of the Acropolis. marble from the architrave of the Acropolis marile from the architeve of the Acropous dropping down on the ruins of a shattered idol, and the other sound seemed to come from the rock on Mars hill, from which we had just descended. But we were by this time so far off that the fragments of sentences are represented when described from Mars hills. time so far off that the fragments of sentences were smaller when dropping from Mars hill than were the fragments of fallen marble on the Acropolis, and I could only hear parts of disconnected sentences waited on the night air—"God who made the world"—"of one blood all nations"—"appointed a day in which He will judge the world"—"raised him from the dead."

As that night in Athens I put my tired head on my pillow, and the exciting scenes of the day passed through my mind, I thought on the same subject on which as a boy I made my commencement speech in Niblo's theater on graduation day from the New York university, it will be made of several effects of several transport. graduation day from the New Jork university, viz.: "The moral effects of sculpture and architecture," but further than I could have thought in boyhood, I thought in Athens that night that the moral effects of architecture and sculpture depend on what you do in great buildings after they are put up, and upon the character of the men whose forms you cut in the marble; yea! I thought that night what stringgles the martyrs went through in order character of the men whose forms you cut in the marble; yea! I thought that night what struggles the martyrs went through in order that in our time [the gospel might have full swing, and I thought that night what a brainy religion it must be that could absorb a hero like him whom we have considered today, a man the superior of the whole human race, the infidels but pigmies or homunculi compared with him; and I thought what a rapturous consideration it is that, through the same grace that saved Paul, we shall confront this great apostle, and shall have the opportunity, amid the familiarities of the skies, of asking him what was the greatest occasion of all his life. He may say: "The shipwreck of Melita." He may say: "The riot at Ephesus." He may say: "The riot at Ephesus." He may say: "My last walk out on the road to Ostia." But I think he will say: "The day I stood on Mars hill addressing the indignant Areopagites, and looking off upon the towering form of Minerva, and the majesty of the Parthenon, and all the brilliant divinities of the Acropolis. That account in the Bible was true. My spirit was stirred within me when I saw the city wholly gived up to idolatry!"

NOTICE BY THE MAYOR AND GENERAL.

Whereas, The Mayor and General Council of the city of Atlanta desire to issue $500,000 (five hundred thousand dollars) of thirty year bonds of said city for the purpose of enlarging the water supply thereof, in accordance with the constitution and laws of said state, and in pursuance of an act amending the charter of said city approved August 2ist, 1891, and the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of said city being necessary to authorize the issue of said bonds.

And whereas, An ordinance was passed by the city council on the 20th day of October, 1891, and concurred in by the aldermen of said city on the 22d day of October, 1891, and approved by the mayor October 23d, 1891, provided for the holding of an election at the several voting precincts of said city, to-wit, on the first Wednesday, the second day of December, 1891, to determine the question whether the qualified voters of said city would assent to the issue of bonds as afore-said.

Notice is therefore hereby given that an election will be held to determine the question afore-said.

VOTERS WILL TARE NOTICE:

1. That the amount of bonds proposed to be issued is $500,000; that they are to bear interest at

VOTERS WILL TAKE NOTICE:

1. That the amount of bonds proposed to be issued is $500,000; that they are to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent per annum, interest payable semi-annually; that they are to run thirty years, and the principal and interest is to be payable in gold or its equivalent; that the bonds, or the proceeds of the sale thereof, are to be used only in enlarging the water supply of said city.

be used only in enlarging the water supply of said city.

2. That the election will be held at the several voting precinets of said city, under the same rules and regulations that govern elections for mayor, aldermen and councilmen, and will be held with the election for aldermen and councilmen to be held on the same day, to wit: December 2d, 1891.

3. That voters qualified to vote in the election for aldermen and councilmen are likewise qualified to vote on the question of issuing water bonds.

filed to vote on the question of issuing water bonds.

4. That the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of the city is necessary to authorize the issue of these bonds.

5. That if the bonds aforesaid are authorized and issued, provision will be made for the full payment of the principal and interest thereof within thirty years from the date of the issue.

6. Voters will have printed or written on their ballots "for water bonds." or "against water bonds."

7. This notice to be published in The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, the paper in which the sheriff's advertisements for said county are held, also in The Journal and The Herald, for the space of thiry days next preceding the day of said election. Bigned.

Tuesday, Dec. 1st, 1891, 10 a.m.
On the Premises.

This includes some of the most valuable and destrable property in Atlanta—right in the very heart of the city. Four storehouse, lots front opposite the postoffice and opera house. When the new steled bridge isjinished on Forsyth street no real estate in Atlanta will be worth more per front foot than the property we now offer to the highest bidder. Now is a most opportune time to buy, for 'tis an admitted fact that Atlanta property enhances in value annually. The substantial brick building on the corner of Forsyth and Walton streets is yielding a handsome income at present. The 21 vacant lots in Inman Park are shaded with beautiful native oaks. Just the place for a gentleman to make an elegant home.

Edgewood avenue runs due east from the center of the city to Inman Park, passing directly through 21 of these lots. On it is the most perfect system of electric cars to be found in the United States and one of the grandest drives in the city. More expensive and handsome buildings are to be seen on this beautiful thoroughiare than upon any line of street leading from the center of Atlanta. One building alone when completed is to cost a cool million dollars. You may never have so favurable an opportunity to buy such property as this again. Then attend the sale and secure your family a first-class location on a high and healthful ridge where the surroundings are choice and the real estate will continue to enhance for years to come. Every lot will be sold to the highest bidder. Titles indisputable. Ternas cash. Remember the Forsyth street lots are in the same block with the Seltzer stores that 1 sold to eager purchasers at fair prices in 1890, our oldest citizens paying the best prices and securing the lots.

Apply at my office, No. 20 Kimball house, Pryor street, for plats or information.
